Humanity and $1,000,000 Women Spend 52 Billions 1,000,000 Tons of Paper Income Tax Refunds

—By Arthur Brisbane—

L. N. LITTAUER gives $1,000,000 "to humanity."

Humanity is big. $1,000,000 is small. Mr. Littauer's gift would amount to about one-sixteenth of a cent for each for all human beings on earth. That shows the futility of any plan to "divide wealth."

One million, kept together, wisely used, might be useful.

But, on the whole, earth's ten hundred million human beings must work out their own problems. Nobody's $1,000,000 can help much.

Mrs. Sippell, head of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, says women do nine-tenths of the buying, spending about fifty-two thousand million dollars each year. That's important to advertisers.

The fact that women spend fifty-two billions a year should make every advertiser keep in the back of his head the question, "what do women want?" whether he sells automobiles or necktles.

When Seward bought Alaska for $8,000,000 he got a bargain. The Department of Agriculture says Alaska's forests can yield every year, forever, 1,500,000 cords of pulp wood, enough for 1,000,000 tons of newsprint paper.

That means $50,000,000 a year at 2½ cents a pound, which is about what paper ought to cost.

"Vast forests of pulpwood in the Tongsah National forest are to be managed by the Government for never-ending production of timber," says the report.

With sidewater transportation and plenty of water power in Alaska, the country need not depend on Canada for newsprint.

Conservative publishers may feel differently about Government ownership and management when it concerns their own newsprint supply.

Anybody excited because the United States returns income tax illegally assessed, or collected, may be comforted by FACTS.

All refunds and abatements made by the Treasury amount to only two and a quarter per cent of total receipts. Furthermore, refunds made in accordance with the law, and often based on only court decisions, equal ONLY 24 PER CENT ON ADDITIONAL INCOME TAX ASSESSMENTS LAID AND COLLECTED.

In other words, for every dollar given back by the Government, or credited on payments due, the Government collects four dollars from individuals that do not pay enough.

The treasury is compelled to make refunds when it collects taxes illegally, or improperly. The Government cannot steal even from the Steel Trust and cannot ignore court decisions.

As to the delay in adjustments on income tax matter, it should be remembered that in connection with big corporations it is necessary to inspect plants all over the country. Documents in one single case may involve typewriting tens of thousands of papers.

A bill in Indiana's Senate suggests flogging for male criminals who carry weapons while committing crime.

Strokes would be "administered to the bare back, well laid on," and punishment graduated up to SIXTY LASHES.

Why not have all criminals operating with or without weapons put to work for 10 or 20 years. Pay them for work, let them accumulate money, and except in cases of murder, release them after time has convinced that work and saving are worth while.

Philadelphia experiments show that motor buses can be operated with oil in place of gasoline. A New Zealander came from the other side of the earth with the invention.

This means that the companies owning most oil in the ground may be the best oil companies. Make a memorandum of it, if you buy oil stocks.

Pleasant day in Wall Street yesterday, more than four and a quarter million shares sold. United States Steel going to a new high price, above $180. Allowing for 40 per cent distribution of stock, that would make $252, the price of stock that Andrew Carnegie once called "not even water." You can't tell how things will develop in the United States with time and attention. Don't sell short.

Figures grow rapidly. Seven New York banks and trust companies now have about six billions of deposits, equalling two-thirds of the deposits in all the banks of the United States in 1913.

As Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, high commissioner of baseball, arrived in Boston today, Claude Davidson, president of the Outdoor Recreation League, was questioned for two hours by state officials in connection with the Sunday sports investigation.

Judge Landis, who was reported to be going to devote part of his stay here to a thorough personal investigation of the Sunday baseball maelstrom whirling about the Boston Braves, declined very emphatically to make any comment.

"It would be impertinent to say one word at this time," he said, "because the matter is being investigated by state officials in connection with the Sunday sports investigation."

THRILL SLAYER'S FATE IN JURY'S HANDS TODAY

By TARLETON COLLIER
I. N. S. Special Correspondent

Atlanta, Jan. 19—The fate of George Harsh, wealthy collegiate "thrill slayer," went to the jury today.

Final argument for the prosecution and the judge's charge to the jury were completed shortly after noon, and the case went to the twelve men who have listened four days to testimony designed to show on the one hand that the confessed slayer of Willard Smith, drug clerk, is abnormal mentally and physically, and on the other that he is not.

Judge E. D. Thomas informed the jury that it can bring in one of two verdicts—one of "guilty," administering the extreme penalty of the law—electrocution—or one of "guilty with recommendation of mercy."

The jurist explained to the jurymen that while Harsh entered a technical plea of "not guilty" at the beginning of his trial, counsel did not ask for an acquittal.

"The only question for you to determine," he said, "is the measure of punishment that will be meted out to him."

'SMILING JIM' DONOVAN, EX-CITY CLERK, DEAD

"Smiling Jim" Donovan, for 16 years city clerk of Boston until his retirement last November, died today at his home, 71 Emerald st., South End, following a long illness.

News of Donovan's death was received with widespread grief at City Hall. Flags were immediately lowered to half-mast. Friends of the veteran city clerk gathered in saddened groups in corridors and offices.

Born in the South End 70 years ago, Donovan was a power in the political life of Boston for half a century. He entered politics early and was elected to the old Common Council in 1882. In 1884 he went to the House, serving there through 1888, and served in the Senate from 1893 through 1895. 1895 he was elected a member of the Governor's Council and served two years.

He was president of the Democratic city committee in 1893, 1894, 1895, 1900, 1901 and 1905. From 1896 to 1899 Donovan was superin-

BAY STATE WOMEN NOT SLIGHTED, SAYS MOSES

Washington, Jan. 19 (INS)—Senator George H. Moses (R.) of New Hampshire, chairman of the capital inaugural committee, denied today that the Women's Republican Club of Massachusetts was being discriminated against in the matter of inaugural tickets "because Massachusetts went for Al Smith."

Moses explained the club requested 100 platform tickets, which he thought excessive in view of the great number of other requests. Four years ago, he said, the club was allotted 70 tickets, and that "very considerable number" was granted because it was a Massachusetts President who was being inaugurated.

2 MEN FREED, 2 BOYS HELD AS BAG GRABBERS

Two boys were held as suspects today by Boston police in the snatching of handbags from more than 100 women and girls on the streets of Boston and the suburbs.

Two men who were taken into custody on suspicion on the strength of a story told by one of the boys, who said they had trained him to this form of theft, were later released when police declared they were satisfied the boy had falsified.

According to Capt. John M. Anderson of the Back Bay police division, witnesses called in to verify the boy's story failed to identify either of the men.

The first boy arrested was Romeo Resca, 10, of Readville, who was reported by the authorities to have given information involving the others after long questioning. Resca, held as a suspect, was arrested in an alley of Marlborough st., Back Bay, after a chase which followed the theft of a handbag from Miss Helen Doherty, a maid employed at a Beacon st. residence.

The other boy, who is 15 years old, was taken to the Back Bay police station from his home in Revere, where a Boston officer, accompanied by a Revere sergeant, went to get him.

Young Resca was captured by a taxi-driver, Edward Guenf, who responded to Miss Doherty's cries for help as she gave chase along Marlborough st.

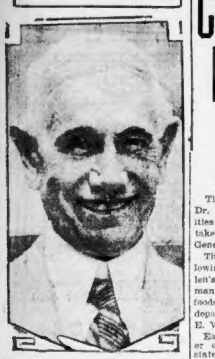
Ex-CityClerkDies



JAMES DONOVAN

tendent of lamps and from 1895 to 1906 was superintendent of streets.

He was elected city clerk of Boston in 1912, and held that office up to the time of his retirement. His unfailing good nature, courtesy and tact continued to make friends for him, and when last October he was confined to bed by asthma complicated by heart trouble, letters of condolence poured in by the hundreds.

On November 2 last, Mr. Donovan sent a letter to the City Council announcing his resignation because of ill health, and that he intended to apply to the Boston Retirement Board to be regularly pensioned as he was near the age limit for city service.

The council accepted the resignation with regret, and Councillor Henry Parkman, Jr., introduced a resolution, which was unanimously carried, expressing the regret of the council at Mr. Donovan's retirement and paying him high tribute. His assistant, Wilfred J. Doyle, was then elected as his successor.

OLD WARD 9 BOSS

For many years "Smiling Jim" Donovan was political boss of old Ward 9 and old Ward 17, which at first time comprised the section in the neighborhood of Dover st. One of his proteges was Samuel Silverman, then a budding lawyer, who was sent to the House of Representatives from Ward 9. In 1918, under the administration of Andrew J. Peters, Donovan was instrumental in placing Silverman in the office of the city corporation counsel, where he still remains.

"Jim" Donovan rose from a butcher boy in a market not far from his old home to high office, to be a leader in politics, an adviser of Governor Russell, right-hand man to Mayor Collins and a participant in the national councils of the Democratic party.

CHEMISTS MAY FACE COURT

The Governor further instructed Dr. Bigelow that if any irregularities were found to have occurred to take such action as the Attorney-General advised.

The instructions were given following a conference in Governor Allen's office with Dr. Bigelow, Herman C. Lythgoe, head of the pure foods and drug division of the health department, and Atty.-Gen. Joseph E. Warner.

Earlier in the day the commissioner of public health had issued a statement concerning the police charges, but after going to the Governor's office had requested that the statement be held up.

"This matter only came to my attention this morning," said the Governor, referring to the charge of Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson that at least three liquor cases had been lost in court through analyses by State chemists which placed the alcoholic content below 2.75 per cent.

"I had a conference with the health commissioner, attorney-general and head chemist at the close of which I requested the commissioner to hold the most thorough kind of investigation and, if after such investigation he was satisfied that any irregularities had occurred, to take such action as the attorney-general advised, and to reorganize his department so that in the future there could be no basis for such charges arising as have arisen during the past 24 hours."

FOUND INACCURATE

He said Lythgoe personally analyzed at least one of the samples, and found that the report on it by his chemist was inaccurate, and that the report of the private chemist engaged by the police was correct.

While the State House probe was going on, the question arose as to whether or not judges before whom the cases involving the false analyses were heard, might not institute perjury or contempt charges providing the police contentions were borne out.

It was held that the chemists' reports were in the nature of expert testimony, and as such were amenable to the jurisdiction of the court. No statement as to this angle of the case was forthcoming.

The results developed when officers who made the raids expressed to their superiors the opinion that liquor labelled as below 2.75 per cent alcoholic content was in reality above the legal requirement.

PRIVATE ANALYSIS

Commissioner Wilson then sent the same samples to a private chemist, who reported they contained more alcohol than the law allowed.

Wilson then took the matter up with Lythgoe, who visited police headquarters for a conference with the commissioner. A series of three conferences was held between the two officials at headquarters, the last one taking place last Tuesday.

A conference followed at the State House, at which Dr. Bigelow, Asst. A conference followed at the State Gen. P. Delano Putnam and Capt. Patterson of the liquor squad were present.

$7500 FIRE ON SHIP AT EAST BOSTON

A stubborn fire today in the No. 2 hatch of the S. S. City of Newcastle, docked at Pier 2 of the Boston & Albany Railroad, East Boston, caused $7500 damage to her cargo of cotton waste.

Billows of black smoke from the hold forced firemen attached to the fireboats and the East Boston companies to work in relays. Several of the firefighters were affected by smoke and heat from the red hot deckplates.

The fire was discovered by the cargo watchman making his tour of inspection shortly before daybreak. It is believed that the cause is spontaneous combustion and that the fire had been smoldering for many hours before it was discovered.

With Capt. William Hill in command, the Newcastle arrived in port yesterday from Calcutta and Far East ports. The captain planned to sail for New York tonight, but owing to the damage to the ship it is believed that the sailing will be delayed for at least 24 hours.

gued by the attorney-general and the prosecuting attorney of your county, and while the investigation is on I am not going to discuss any phase of it."

ON "FUCHS' FLOOR."

"When these investigations are ended will you do anything about it?" he was asked, and he replied: "I refuse to talk about it."

"Are you going to see C. F. Adams, the Braves vice-president, while in Boston?"

"I haven't got a thing to say."

The man whose word is paramount law in the baseball world arrived from Chicago at the Back Bay station and went to the Copley Plaza hotel, where he was assigned a room on the same floor as the now-famous one in which President Fuchs of the Braves feared he was solicited for a $65,000 bribe by a city councillor.

Regarding the Ruth case, Judge Landis said he was sorry for the home-run king's bereavement, and had wired "Babe" his sympathy.

BRUSSE COMES NEXT.

Claude Davidson went to the State House accompanied by an attorney, Charles A. McCarron, to submit to questioning by Atty.-Gen. Warner and Asst.-Atty.-General Gerald J. Callahan, and at the interview a stenographer on Warner's staff took notes.

When the two-hour session was over it was announced that questioning of O. J. Brusse, treasurer of the Outdoor Recreation League, would take place on Monday.

Judge Landis came to Boston primarily to address a dinner tonight of the American Legion at the Statler hotel in honor of the national commander, Paul V. McNutt.

12 DEATHS MARK STORM'S TRAIL IN MIDWEST

Chicago, Jan. 19 (AP)—A dozen deaths today marked the trail of winter's worst storm as it swept violently across the midwest.

Sub-zero temperature accompanied the freakish weather with rain and snow, and added to the misery in stricken areas where homes and buildings were demolished. Sections of Missouri, Mississippi, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky and Ohio suffered damage.

In Kentucky four were killed. A farmer, O. G. Kloss of near Georgetown, was crushed to death when his barn collapsed, and three other men were swept into the Ohio river.

Mrs. Albert Stoodt, Mansfield, O., was electrocuted when the storm blew a high tension wire across a telephone line over which she was talking.

A third victim in Missouri was added today with the death of Mrs. William Brown, fatally injured in a collapse of her home.

Seven escaped, and three other men was blown down on scores of children, reported today only two students met death in the crash. Four had been reported yesterday that three were killed.

The town also said there was no information today regarding the death of Mrs. Amos Newman, reported killed yesterday.

VATICAN TO HAVE U.S. ENVOY

Secretary of State Kellogg said today the question had not yet come up officially, but it is believed should the present negotiations between the Vatican and Premier Mussolini for a sovereign Vatican state within the precincts of the Italian kingdom be successful, the United States would have to accord recognition.

France and many other powers have been presented at the Vatican by ambassadors for several years, and reports indicate Paris is already considering the necessity for ambassadorial representation to the new state.

Virtually all other European nations likewise are expected to accord recognition, which means they will have to send plenipotentiaries just as they do to any sovereign state.

If the United States should extend formal recognition, it would be in accord with diplomatic usage since this government came into being. Likewise it would be in accord with precedents established in 1848.

The papal states existed at that time as a sovereignty before the Italian government withdrew its support and the fend between Italy and the Vatican started. The papacy was also known as the pontifical states of the church, Holy See and Rome.

The United States on April 7, 1848, sent Jacob L. Martin of North Carolina as charge d'affaires.

Since 1868 the United States has not given any recognition to the papacy, although the Vatican has been represented in Washington by a special delegate, or nuncio.

Will Enter League as Sovereign State

Rome, Jan. 19 (INS)—The new papal state, to be created when the conflict between the Catholic Church and Italy is settled, may join the League of Nations, it was learned today.

If a concordat is officially announced by Pope Pius XI and King Victor Emmanuel, it is anticipated that Italy or some other Catholic power, now a member of the league, will propose the admission of the papal state.

SENATE TAKES UP FIGHT OVER ROY O. WEST

Washington, Jan. 19 (INS)—Leaving the new cruiser bill and the prohibition row in suspense the Senate turned today to consider confirmation of the nomination of Roy O. West of Chicago as secretary of the interior. There was indicated behind closed doors a warm debate, first on whether consideration of West should be public, and after that is settled, on his fitness for the secretaryship.

A motion by Senator Nye (R) of North Dakota, to consider West in open executive session was defeated.

West is opposed principally because of his former legal connections with the interests of Samuel Insull, Chicago utility magnate. Several senators intend also to bring up his part in the approval of a reclamation project in New Mexico last year.

Louis Marshall, New York attorney, charges West had a "secret agreement" with the conservancy district with which the contract was made

Five hundred residents of North Revere section of Revere have signed a petition circulated by members of the North Shore Improvement Association, asking that North Revere be annexed to the town of Saugus. TEN RESCUED IN OHIO FLOOD

Cleveland, O., Jan. 19 (AP)—Ten persons were rescued early today as rising waters of the Cuyahoga and Chagrin rivers swirled about their homes.

Three men braved the swollen Chagrin river, which had overflowed into a ravine, to rescue Mr. and Mrs. Grant Downing, their three-year-old daughter, Dorothy, and a 26-months-old baby. Two men were taken from the roof of a shack after the Cuyahoga river had risen three feet in an hour and awakened them in their banks.

Coast guards saved another family, marooned at the mouth of the Chagrin river. Two children and their mother and father were carried to safety in a collapsible boat.

Attracted by Downing's gun fire, Lionel Heath, Ray Cattell and Winfield Scott, dragged a rowboat some distance up the river to near the Downing home and attached a rope to the stern. Then they rescued the family.

New York, Jan. 19 (INS)—In one of the most spectacular ship "raids" since war times 100 customs inspectors today searched the French liner Rochambeau for contraband liquor. The 100, to be relieved by others, will work day and night until all cargo and baggage have been examined.

Col. W. S. Conrow said some French liners have been delivering liquor to bootleg boats. Recently a large cargo of manifests liquor was found on the pier.

JOLSON LOOKS FOR HEIR

New York, Jan. 19 (INS)—"She is Heaven's harmony."

Now when a man—especially a husband—pulls words like that he is pretty well satisfied," said Al Jolson, who arrived here from the West today simply bubbling over with details about his and his bride, the former Ruby Keeler, are on the outs.

And he confirmed rumors that the stork is hovering over the Jolson home.

The famous "Mammy" singer listened patiently in his suite in the Fifth Towers while he was told of the reports of a rift that followed his return from his honeymoon in Honolulu.

"Now," he said, "I want to correct once and for all these reports. Ruby and I are very happy. I expect an heir soon. I put Ruby before my singing and singing is pretty sweet to me. Ruby is Heaven's harmony. She simply has no faults."

Concerning the stories that he left his bride at the pier in San Francisco, Jolson had this to say:

"I was met by my attorney, Nathan Burkan. He had to catch a train East. I had explained to Ruby before we left the boat that I would duck away immediately. That is all there was to it."

Jolson telephoned Ruby this morning.

As chairman of the Democratic city committee he was actual leader of the Democratic party in Boston and as such was constantly in the thick of political battles.

For years he was a staunch bachelor, but in 1910 he succumbed to the charms of Miss Henrietta Louise Webber, sister of the late Fire Chief Webber and they were married.

INDICTED IN CONSPIRACY

HUB MAN WILL SURRENDER IN RUM RING

A prominent Bromfield st. business man today notified federal authorities that he will surrender Monday under a secret indictment charging him with conspiracy to smuggle liquor on Cape Cod.

Five of his alleged co-conspirators, charged with either piloting the rum-laden craft into Massachusetts waters or with having unloaded it cargo and transported it ashore, have already been arraigned on the same indictment and are out on bail after their entry of not guilty pleas.

The five on bail are John and Alfred Strong of North Easton, Charles J. Campbell of Provincetown, Frank Butler of New Bedford and George Hoermans of Woods Hole.

The indictment naming these and the Boston business man followed the seizure by federal prohibition agents of 250 sacks of imported liquors on the Strong farm at North Easton a month ago and the subsequent capture of the speedboat Tramp by customs officials in New Bedford harbor with 400 sacks of equally expensive contraband.

The secret indictment charges the Bromfield st. merchant with being a principal in the smuggling conspiracy, with having directed the rum-running activities of the Tramp and with having conspired to conceal the liquor ashore.

McKenna further declared the "Tramp" was capable of running direct into "wet" ports in the Canadian Provinces, where its load of liquor was taken on.

RISING RIVERS BRING FLOOD DANGER TO N. E.

HOPE COLD WAVE WILL BRING RELIEF

The flood menace reared its head in New England today as a result of the unseasonable warmth, with a number of rivers reported rising, and dynamiting resorted to at Colebrook, N. H., to clear ice jams in the Mohawk river.

Word was received from Springfield that the Connecticut was beginning to feel the effects of the thaw, and officials of the Turner Falls Power & Electric Co. announced they were preparing for a heavy rise.

The same officials reported that the West river, which flows into the Connecticut, just north of Brattleboro, Vt., had surged up three feet during the night and was still rising.

The Merrimac at Manchester, N. H., was up seven or eight inches, and throughout New England officials and residents were anxiously watching the various streams, particularly in Vermont, where a recurrence of the recent disastrous floods was feared.

The storm of last night in western Massachusetts, in which nearly an inch of rain fell, cleared the snow that was deposited Wednesday and Thursday and poured it as water into the already swelling streams.

Only a sharp drop in temperature can hold back the upward movement of the streams, it was said, and although a decline as been predicted, the weather bureau could not see any extreme cold 'n sight.

Greater Boston was treated to a gorgeous double-rainbow early this morning as the temperature soared to 40 and equaled a record that had stood for 29 years.

The rainbow was visible about 7 o'clock and as it shone in the haze it proved a true harbinger of clear, colder weather. Before noon the mercury started on a gradual descent and the prediction is for comparative cold tonight followed by a Sunday of increasing cloudiness leading up to rain or snow in the afternoon or evening.

The mercury rose to 58 at 4 a. m. and remained there for five hours, matching the record for January 19, which was established in 1990.

While this balmy spell was holding sway the weather man predicted a long drop in temperature, but he said he could not foresee extremely low figures tonight, because the mercury had too far to go.

The center of the warm area has moved off and a real cold wave is in the offing, having produced subzero temperatures from the Pacific Coast to South Dakota.

The storm area that threatens the Hub with rain or snow late Sunday has been developing in Colorado and Utah. If the center of this area passes to the north, Boston will get rain; if to the south, more snow.

Storm warnings had been posted last night along the coast for today, but these were taken down. Boston, with 60, was 19 degrees more spring like than Atlantic City and about on a par with the Gulf states. Jacksonville, Fla., was only two degrees warmer.

Forecast for Boston and vicinity: Fair and much colder tonight; Sunday, increasing cloudiness, followed by rain or snow Sunday afternoon or night; diminishing west and northwest winds.

LEGION CHIEF SOUNDS NEED FOR DEFENSE

"There can be no armistice with those who would destroy this nation or render it helpless," declared Paul V. McNutt, national commander of the American Legion, in Boston today.

Here as guest of honor at the Massachusetts Legion's banquet at the Hotel Statler tonight, Comdr. McNutt brought word from national headquarters emphasizing the American Legion's determination to continue its work for national defense, child welfare and care of disabled veterans.

"The Legion" he said, "is deeply concerned with seeing that our country has adequate defense, sufficient in size and organization to be protective. With world conditions as they are today, it is imperative that this nation have an adequate national defense, not as a gesture but as a practical means of preserving our national integrity and protecting the institutions under which we have grown great."

Comdr. McNutt is a native of Franklin, Ind. He is a graduate of Indiana University and of the Harvard Law School. During the world war, he was commissioned a captain of field artillery and subsequently promoted to the grades of major and lieutenant colonel. He is now a colonel in the organized reserve, commanding a field artillery regiment.

The Treasury Department claimed an additional tax from Anderson of $1,660,000, but the Government lost in the trial of the case and was forced instead to make the refund to Anderson.

'FLU' EPIDEMIC PASSES PEAK IN BAY STATE; 214 CASES TODAY

TOTAL FOR JANUARY IS 4946

The total of new influenza cases reported in Massachusetts was 214 today, showing the disease still on the decrease. Yesterday's total was 237.

The apparent peak was reached Wednesday, when the figure for the day was 576.

The January total of influenza cases in the Commonwealth is 4946 to date. The total for the entire year of 1928 was 1305.

Lobar pneumonia seemed also on the decrease today. A total of 37 cases was reported to the State House, including five deaths. Yesterday's total was 40 cases.

The deaths from pneumonia during January thus far have totaled 131. The "expected" total, based on the average of years past for the same period, is 65.

Dr. Clarence L. Scammon, director of the division of communicable diseases in the state health department, gave a survey of the influenza situation, and said:

"The well individual should run as near a normal existence as possible, taking care to get an adequate amount of sleep, food and exercise.

"There has been no epidemic of closing schools, churches and theaters during the present fluation. The elimination of public gatherings had no effect in 1918 on the decrease of the spread of the disease, but it did, without doubt, increase public panic over it.

"Preventive vaccine or sera should not be used unless with the advice of a physician, and from what scientific information there is, their value is certainly questionable.

"To summarize, if you are sick, go to bed and call a physician. Common sense is better than nostrums in handling grippe, colds and influenza."

BOYS LEAP FOR LIFE IN FIRE AT SCHOOL

Lawrenceville, N. J., Jan. 19 (AP) —Dawes House, largest dormitory of Lawrenceville school, was destroyed early today by fire that sent students leaping for their lives. The loss exceeded $75,000.

The dormitory, a rambling frame structure, donated to the school by Vice-President Dawes, housed 45 students, three masters and three servants.

Boys sleeping in the second story were roused just in time to escape. Among them was Dana Dawes, a son of the Vice-President.

Sylvan Schlopp of New York, occupying quarters on the first floor, prevented a tragedy when, awakened by the roar of flames, he ran about the building yelling an alarm.

The fire was menacingly close when the boys on the second floor were awakened. The stairways were spouting flames. The windows offered the only way of escape, with a long jump to the ground.

Some of the boys formed human chains by holding onto each other's hands and feet, and many escaped by climbing down the backs of their companions. Others leaped to the ground.

Barefooted and clad only in pajamas, the boys left behind their clothing and valuables. A few snatched up overcoats before they leaped.

Everett Noble, assistant master of Dawes House, who recently returned from a hazardous adventure in Florida, directed the escapes from the blazing house.

BELGIUM HEARS THE VOICE OF HOOVER

Washington, Jan. 19 (AP)—Tribute to the sacrifice and courage of the Belgian people in the World War was paid today by President-elect Hoover in an address carried across the ocean by long-distance telephone.

Sitting at his desk here, Mr. Hoover spoke to an audience in the public square at Brussels at a celebration in honor of the election of the former chairman of the commission for the relief of Belgium to the presidency of the United States.

The address was in response to those delivered by King Albert, Premier Jaspar and Emile Vinqui, who was associated with Mr. Hoover in Belgian relief work during the German occupation.

"I appreciate this opportunity to extend my greetings to Your Majesties and to my old friends of the relief organization in Belgium," Mr. Hoover said. "Time has quickly dimmed the gigantic period of the great war in the minds of men. But nothing dims the radiance of Belgian sacrifice and courage. There are none who do not pay homage to its imperishable inspiration and sacrifice.

"It is the nets of service, of sacrifice and of heroism in all nations that should remain as the heritage of the great war, for in these all humanity can unite in a common unification and a common inspiration.

"I rejoice also in the assistance that the continuing activities of the relief organization have been able to give to the advancement of education in Belgium.

"I thank Your Majesties, the prime minister and other friends for their renewed expressions of good will to myself and my associates and to my country. It marks an enduring friendship, for it springs from the hearts of men. It finds deep response in my countrymen."

The building in which the skeleton was found was originally a church. It was remodeled half a century ago, the first floor being occupied by stores and the two upper floors by apartments. The skeleton was under the flooring of the third story.

TREADWAY AND GARNER CLASH ON TARIFF

Washington, Jan. 19 (AP)—The first Democrat-Republican flare-up of the tariff revision hearings occurred today when Rep. Garner of Texas, ranking minority member of the ways and means committee, proposed full publicity in re-writing the tariff act.

Garner said it was the understanding of the people that all tariff bills are written in secret and he suggested the bill to be presented at the special session be based on testimony taken in the open hearings.

Rep. Treadway, Republican, Massachusetts, said he did not believe the sub-committees, which will meet to prepare rates for each of the 15 schedules in the act after the open hearings, and with Democrats excluded, would be obliged to base their recommendations solely on the basis of testimony taken in the open. He charged Garner was actuated by a desire for publicity.

"The Democrats," Garner replied, "are not afraid of publicity where the question of public affairs is concerned. I want to protect against secret sessions with beneficiaries writing the rates."

"I don't like the intimation that we are going to write this bill for any special interest," Treadway retorted. "The American people are going to benefit by this measure. No beneficiary is writing this tariff."

NECKING MEANS NOTHING, SAYS HARVARD DEAN

On the ground that a nationwide survey of "collegiates"—necking, drinking, wearing of garters, socks and kindred matters—has no significance for Harvard men and is of no importance to the Undergraduate of Harvard has declined to respond to a questionnaire on the subject.

This announcement by Dean Hanford was made because at Washington, it was reported Harvard was cooperating in the survey which was originated by Henry G. Doyle, dean of men at George Washington University.

The questions he refgused to answer were as follows:

Is the "collegiate" of the humorous press and the vaudeville stage or the typical student of your college?

Is a slouch appearance, as evidenced by garterless socks, rumpled shirt and collar, sloppy shoes and wrinkles suits of clothes, typical?

What is your attitude on the psychological attitude of your college on the approval of slouchy and careless habits of dress and conduct or neat habits of dress and courteous manners?

Is there any connection, in your opinion, between the attempt to be "collegiate" and such problems as drinking, necking, indifference to work, dishonesty in examinations, or other ethical problems?

Does the "collegiate" type excel as a rule in scholastic standing, sports or other student activities?

Do you or do you not agree with the first in general our student bodies are composed of relatively serious young people, whose ideals and standards do compare favorably with those of preceding generations—in short, that their faults are faults of manners rather than morals?

CLEAR WAY FOR RUTH TO ADOPT DOROTHY

Ruth insisted no further obstacles to impede him in the legal business of adopting nine-year-old Dorothy, the child they be and Mrs. Ruth took from a New York orphanage.

Through his counsel, John F. Feeney of Boston, Ruth left he had fully satisfied Mrs. Ruth's family that Dorothy was not Mrs. Ruth's own daughter.

Dorothy is back in the Brooklyn orphanage, awaiting Ruth's return.

The Babe boarded the train at Back Bay station today all alone. Attorney Feeney, Arthur Fleisher and John Keenan of the Feeney office accompanied him from the Ritz to the station.

Your handwriting, Gloria, belongs to what the character analyst calls the "self vital," and this means that you have a great interest in life and are full of aliveness and refinement but that your will power is no as strong or your nature as sensitive as is usual with "vital" type persons.

COULD NOT BE CRUEL

You are free, therefore, from many of the worst faults of humanity and yet lack some of its strength and best traits. You are not selfish and not at all vain never could be cruel and do not know how to be. You have little aggressiveness, and usually will yield rather than fight.

In dealing with the world of love and affection your best self comes out. Your friendship is a wonderful thing, and your attachment to your family and to those near you is complete.

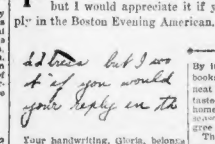
In dealing with the practical world your faults and weaknesses come to light. You are too apt to be imposed upon in business matters as are not especially shrewd, and are inclined to accept what Old Man Circumstance hands you instead of fighting the old cedars! Your will power is not as well developed as it ought to be.

Mentally, refinement marks you. By instinct you are interested in books, music and pictures. You are neat in person, love color, have good taste about the arrangement of the home, like social life, have a fair sense of humor and a moderate degree of health.

There you are, Gloria.

HOW TO DO IT

Upright writing, in which the letter forms are very individual, the letter connections short, the capitals inconspicuous and the whole graphological picture interesting, but without ostentation, is the writing of the student minded person.



These are the people who are innately drawn to books rather than to people who instinctively take to weighty and serious study. They are great readers of history and philosophy and of the abstract sciences; have courage of a mental type, but do not find physical courage necessary or greatly to be desired; like to be alone a good deal, and learn far more from thought introspection and meditation than they do from contact with actual life.

Have Your Handwriting Analyzed

STAGE AND SCREEN

Ah, Simplicity in All Things

The young man who invented something new to brighten the eyes of stage beauties was puzzled over the means to get the fluid into the eye with suitable simplicity. He confided in Mary Nash of "The Command To Love" at the Plymouth. Whereupon she quickly suggested, "Why not put it in the grapefruit?"

TRIO OF PROVEN SUCCESSES MARCH CONFIDENTLY INTO LOCAL ARENA OF DRAMA

A PHILADELPHIA LAWYER in full forensic display is hardly sufficient to cope with "The Trial of Mary Dugan," new courtroom thriller which takes over the Wilbur on Monday. Here are Arthur Hohl, the attorney; John Ravold, judge, and Genevieve Tobin, Mary.

POLITE DRAMA, but with plenty of subtle sting in it, is "The Command to Love," new occupant of the Plymouth. The players are Mary Nash and Henry Stephenson, and the show starts Monday night.

ANN PENNINGTON is still doing what she can for George White's "Scandals." And what she does is highly agreeable to innocent Shubert audiences.

THE LOVELY BURDEN is Luise Beaudet and she is apathetically supported by that eminent grandee, De Wolf Hopper, in "White Lilacs" at the Majestic.

FOXY GRANDPA takes a hand, but the shrinking maid keeps right on shrinking and that, of course, doesn't get him anywhere. Who would with a putty nose? Whitford Kane and Margalo Gillmore in "Volpone," Hollis.

COMBING THE TOMBS FOR GOOD MUSIC

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

GAZING down the years from "Blossom Time" to "White Lilacs," it becomes more evident with every seasonal interval that the good old Doctors Shubert have hit upon a safe, sane and intelligent diagnosis in the perplexing case of operetta. Why some of the other learned professors in similar lines of research have failed to make similar discovery is still an astonishing theatrical mystery. The field is open—it is wide. And the Shuberts appear to have enveloped it, taken it piece by piece, and catalogued its items for use in these or later days.

• • •

FOR the moment there is "White Lilacs" at the Majestic, a delicately tinted portraiture of Chopin in dramatic form, with Chopin's own melodies refashioned for the more modern and fanciful operetta stage. A little useful drama, mixed with tunes that have stood the test of time; that is about all there is to it. But it is sufficient. Turning back to the masters themselves for scores for light opera has proved more than a simple gesture in sound business. It has been an inspiration—hand picked and personally cultivated—by the Shuberts.

• • •

IT was "Blossom Time" which first stirred a waggish critic to this timely though satiric observation: "Why not take the original melodies of Schubert, Chopin and a score of other distinguished composers and transplant them bodily? Although they haven't been aware of it, they have written the scores of 90 per cent of our modern musical plays. Why not be fair and, belated though it may be, give them a measure of credit?"

• • •

NATURALLY there are sound economic advantages to support this newer movement toward better and unadulterated tunes. The subject of royalties may be dismissed gracefully, if not ignored completely. While the ear may not be outraged by the great wealth of synthetic productions which flood the stage, certainly there is no one who will complain when the original dish is served without trimmings. "Blossom Time" taught the Shuberts the real value of pre-war stuff in original packages. While "The Love Song," lifted bodily in melody and matter from Offenbach, had its insecure moments, there still is "White Lilacs" to fall back upon as a most convincing Exhibit B. In spite of Dr. Hajos's surgery, this remains good drama, delightful operetta and is, of course, Chopin at his neatest.

• • •

AND the field remains practically untouched. Think of the operatic riches lurking in the names of Anton Rubinstein, Robert Schumann, Robert Franz, Johann Sebastian Bach, Franz Liszt and those two perennial oratorio boys, Handel and Haydn. Have the wide-awake Doctors Shubert overlooked these? We think not. They are too shrewd as theatrical operators; they possess too keen a sense of theatrical value.

• • •

NATURALLY, all of the masters are not available. We can easily imagine the tough road work that might attend a dramatization of Beethoven and some other of the "moderns," but even these excellent composers have not been immune from musical pens that tap the till and make it pay. George Gershwin and other contrivers in syncopation must feel that they owe something to Debussy. Originality in American operetta composition has been as thin as tissue. Victor Herbert practiced it almost alone, and won his medal. But who else?

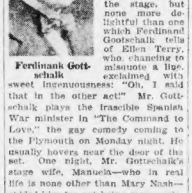
THOSE CUES GONE WRONG!

Every actor at one time or another has had the agonizing experience of finding a "prop" missing—the telegram that is supposed to arrive and doesn't. Or the telephone that at the crucial moment is nowhere to be found. There are innumerable anecdotes of muffing lines or missing cues on the stage, but none more delightful than one which Ferdinand Gottschalk tells of Ellen Terry, who, chancing to misquote a line, exclaimed with sweet ingenuousness: "Oh, I said that in the other act!" Mr. Gottschalk plays the irascible Spanish War minister in "The Command to Love," the gay comedy coming to the Plymouth on Monday night. He usually hovers near the door of the set. One night, Mr. Gottschalk's stage wife, Manuela—who in real life is none other than Mary Nash—chided him for not being more social, off-stage and indulging in a bit of conversation.



Ferdinank Gottschalk

"When I was a young man," Mr. Gottschalk explained, "I had to play a scene in which I was to pull aside the curtain after the heroine of the tragedy had taken poison. I was in the wings talking to one of the young ladies of the company when I heard what I thought was my cue. I rushed on stage, thrusting aside the curtains, and behold, the heroine had not yet taken the poison!"

TIBBETT'S CONCERT

Probably the most important debut of a singer in Boston this season is the coming appearance of Lawrence Tibbett, who will give a recital in Symphony Hall on Sunday afternoon, January 27. The foremost American baritone of the Metropolitan Opera Company has attained great fame for the beauty of his voice, and the quality of his interpretations—both in opera and concert, although his numerous tours have not hitherto brought him to Boston.

SANROMA RECITAL

Jesus Maria Sanroma, the young Bostonian pianist, will give his first recital since his recent return from Europe, at the Sunday afternoon concert, in Symphony Hall, on February 17. Sanroma played with great success in France, Germany and Spain, and on his return made five appearances with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Boston, New York and Brooklyn, with a success which places him in the forefront of living pianists. His recital is awaited with much interest.

POLLY PREFERRED

THE PERFECT PRIVATE SECRETARY is Polly Walker of "Illlie" at the Colonial. She saves the Chewing gum interests for the hero and, moreover, does it all with a song and a dance, a pretty toss of the head.

In Shadow

PATRICIA CALVERT has a ghastly experience in the gloom of "The Whispering Gallery" at Mr. Clive's Copley Theater.

CLAIMS LEGS CHANGING

"The figure of the American girl is undergoing a revolutionary change," said George White, veteran theatrical producer, whose ninth edition of "Scandals" opens Monday to the Shubert. "Legs are growing more shapely as they grow more slender. This change is becoming more and more pronounced now because girls are going in for athletics on an even wider scale. So much stress naturally falls on the legs of a girl who swims, plays tennis and goes in for all the other popular sports that the limbs are losing some of their fleshiness," Mr. White continued.

George White

"They are becoming thinner, yet more shapely. The girl with the well rounded legs is passing. The new model Venus has legs hardened by exercise which gives off a new shapeliness, smarter, in my opinion, than the shapely legs sported by the girls of five or 10 years ago.

"I do not mean to convey by this that girls are becoming thin and scrawny because they are athletic. On the contrary never were American girls so healthy, so well formed as today," concluded the young producer.

ARBOS LEADS SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

Spanish music interpreted by a Spanish musician, Enrique F. Arbos, was the point of chief interest at the concert of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Last week Honegger, French composer and conductor, led the concerts. This week Mr. Arbos brought to us gentle music from the land of torrid sunshine, also music of the dance—sometimes passionate, sometimes boisterous, but always gay.

After a virile interpretation of Wagner's Prelude to "The Mastersingers of Nuremberg," a Shubertian by the Spaniard Hall for first time in Boston, gave us opportunity to judge the merits of both composer and conductor. Precision of beat and respect for artistic proportion marked the excellent interpretation of the conductor, and to him we are devoid of sensationalism, clear in its intent, essentially melodic in character and above all having every indication of being sincerely expressed.

Unquestionably there is yet other new music, not "ultra modern" that we should be permitted to hear.

The composer, only 24 years old, shows marked facility for orchestral writing and feeling in the use of instruments, though the second of his composition was disturbed by a last movement almost ludicrous, seemingly out of place.

To the next numbers, "Alborada del Gracioso" by Ravel, and an arrangement of Albeniz's "Iberia" by the conductor, Mr. Arbos, there was brought out a beautiful panorama of colors that only the palette of a Spaniard could display. "La Procession del Rocio" by Turina and three dances by De Falla closed the program. Once again has a visiting artist made a distinct contribution to the dignity and superb musicianship of the orchestra, rare as these occasions have been.

GIESEKING RECITAL

Walter Gieseking, the artist who is unfounded in unity of the subtler ways of piano playing, will give his only recital of the season here in Symphony Hall, tomorrow afternoon. His program will include Partita No. 2 in C minor, by J. S. Bach; Three Sonatas, by Scarlatti; Sonata in B flat major, by Schubert; two Intermezzi, by Brahms; Ballade in A flat major, by Chopin; Cipressi, by Castelnuovo-Tedesco; Hommage a' Rameau, and Reflets dans l'eau, by Debussy; and Ondine, by Ravel.

"ABIE'S ROSE" FLICKERING ON SCREEN

Once upon a time there was a play called "Abie's Irish Rose." It ran forever and ever—and then they made it into a movie. The ladies and gentlemen, is your entertainment now on the screen at the Metropolitan and you can see it in modern dress.

The screen version of "Abie" is all that the play was, sentimental, schmaltz and even burlesque. But the mob loved it and it will love the cinema for the same reasons. The acting is dominated by Jean Hersholt as Solomon Levy. Mr. Hersholt, of course, has a habit of doing such things. The others in the cast are less fortunate, but adequate none the less.

No one will see that Charles Rogers looks the least bit Jewish and no one would ever believe that Nancy Carroll has even the faintest resemblance to the Irish Rose. Nevertheless, it doesn't matter. The play has been called "actor proof" and nothing can ruin it for the masses.

Victor Fleming, who knows motion picture direction from all angles, made "Abie" for the screen. And he made it in a manner that must be called straight." With no attempt to smarten up his play, Mr. Fleming was careful to leave in every old wheeze and every old ruffle that tickled the taste of the multitudes in the original. The spectator who likes his "Abie" will get a square deal with Mr. Fleming.

Yet simple ears get critical with this little drama because that won't do any good either. There it is, a play that is as full of dramatic duds as any ever written, but the novelties go marching on.

There is also the usual Stage presentation this week at the Metropolitan. Paul Oscard's "Southern Belles" revue, also the affable Ted Claire to act as master of ceremonies. Short films and Mr. Mercedy's organ selection complete the bill.

MONDAY SYMPHONY

Serge Koussevitzky will return from his midwinter vacation to conduct the third concert of the Monday evening series by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The program will consist of Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony in B minor, Ravel's Choreographic Poem, "La Valse," and the Symphony in D minor of Cesar Franck.

THE HELPLESS SEX

PAPA TAKES HIS MEDICINE! Bernard Gorcey and Ida Kramer are still the same sweet friendly enemies in "Abie's Irish Rose." This perennial classic is now on view as a film at the Metropolitan.

Looking Ahead

JANUARY 28—
"The High Road" at the Hollis.
"Night Hostess" at the St. James.
Billy Watson's "Chicken Trust" at the Gayety.

FEBRUARY 4—
Greenwich Village Follies at the Shubert.
"Night Life in Paris" at the Gayety.

NOW UNDER CANVAS

GOOD NEWS! "The Circus Kid" learns that owing to the high winds the performance will take place in the small tent. Frankie Darrow and Joe E. Brown are the newest boys at the Keith-Albee.

"To Thine Own Self Be True"

George White's "Scandals," coming Monday to the Shubert, has a new recruit in the person of Gloria O'Neil, who has just joined the chorus, and so excited over it that she can't sleep nights. She was told about counting sheep, etc. But she says, "I can't pull the wool over my eyes that way."

STAGE AND SCREEN

Vale! One-Drink McSweeney!

The Limerick Editor being out to lunch, we take it upon ourselves to print this one from that pepful sheet, "The Mutual Burlesquer": An Irishman named Pat McSweeney drank, in Paris, one pint of Martini; and the Paris police sent this wire to his niece, "Nous regrettons McSweeney est fini."

FIRST ALL-TALKER TO BE MADE OUT OF DOORS NOW VISIBLE AT THE MODERN

A RECKLESS MAN it is who can look like this at Greta Garbo and not have fifty million masculine film fans to answer to. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., is the irate husky and the film's "A Woman of Affairs," showing next week at Loew's State.

PLOTTING MISCHIEF, Dorothy Burgess and Edmund Lowe get their heads together for no good purpose in "Old Arizona" at the Modern and Beacon. Great fillum, they say.

NANCY DREXEL is the inevitable pretty girl you always find in a film titled like "Riley the Cop." She is the optical balm after the grotesqueries of the funny fellows let up on you. (Scollay).

"THE BLACKGUARD'S PRIVILEGE" is an expression you hear in "Interference" at the Olympia. It means that the villain may force the hero to look the other way. William Powell and Clive Brook.

QUIET NIGHT CLUB SCENE showing an innocent flirtation by the help. June Collyer and Conrad Nagel in "Red Wine" at the Keith Memorial find time for friendship after the customers have gone.

TALKERS BRINGING OUT 'BEST PEOPLE'

By LEO GAFFNEY

IF they can continue to produce all-talkers like "Interference," then the future for the films will simply simmer down to a mere routine for that thick-skinned pair, Supply and Demand. "Interference" is doing so well in the box-office that it will set new standards. The principal benefit for audiences will lie in meeting a better class of people on the screen. A few more roles like the one William Powell now appears in at the Olympia and Fenway and that bogus bad man, Four-Gun Phil, from the mesa land, will turn in his shootin' irons and give up in disgust; and all the big gutter and yegg men from the underworld will quit, too, and get back to honest freight-handling.

* * *

WHAT the films need right now, as badly as anything else, is a sweeping raid on worn out characters. For instance, couldn't we spare the gold-digging chorus girl who does it all to keep little brother in college? And haven't we had enough of the clown or song and dance man who persists in spite of a broken heart? And couldn't we manage to rest up the collegiate youth, the misunderstood wife and the gunman's moll? And must we still swallow all the hooey about things coming right through the power of love? Hasn't the "personality girl" done with us yet? Can't some young man with a sense of humor say "no" to her for once? And is there anyone left who is not yet wise to the "Missing Girl" series? The film trade calls this last group the "sucker titles." They are the loudest and phoniest of all.

* * *

IN "Interference" Mr. Powell proves that it is perfectly possible for a gentleman to wear a morning coat, top hat and speak correct English without being laughed at in a movie house. In fact, Mr. Powell is probably the first screen crook who can climb into a Rolls-Royce landaulet and give his destination to the driver without looking "stuck up." And, incidentally, "Interference" reproduces the mounting whine of a motor car's second gear—and it doesn't sound like an off-stage noise. There are, indeed, so many praiseworthy innovations in this admirable talker that the whole thing is a creation by itself. It followed no beaten track, but it will be followed. The films never allow a good thing to remain modest.

* * *

THE ensuing week is marked by another pioneer step in talking pictures. "In Old Arizona" at the Modern and Beacon is the first dialogue film to be made out of doors. Moreover, it is not at all related to the "Westerns" of repute. Fourgun Phil thought so and applied for a job but all he got was the air. "Arizona" has neither hero nor heroine (you'll have to take our word for that), and although there are plenty of U. S. Cavalry in it, not once do they gallop to the rescue. There is a dance hall scene, but nobody shoots the light out; one of the bawdy blondes cries into her beer when the music plays tremolo, and love does not find a way. But we're getting ahead of our story and it is only the after dinner speakers who may do that. Monday's the day to tell you all about this latest big development of the speaking screen.

IN DEFENCE OF DRAMA

Court procedure, as exemplified by "The Trial of Mary Dugan," new play at the Wilbur, comes in for criticism from certain lawyers wherever the play is presented. The most bitter of these was received recently from an anonymous writer who claimed that the district attorney in Cellar's play would have been disbarred for his cross - examination of Mary Dugan, even if the judge had permitted him to continue with the trial after his opening address to the jury. The author scoffs at his critics. "You have no idea the number of complaints I receive," says Veiller complacently, while counting his weekly royalties. "My father, for instance, has written me to say that there isn't a properly dressed pair of trousers in the entire show, and that he was heartbroken over it.

"Another writer, who claims to be a lawyer, claims that my district attorney would have been stopped by the judge and thrown out of court bodily for his opening address to the jury.

"I am not going to get into a controversy with anyone about my play. But I'll bet some of my lawyer critics were never on the staff of any district attorney during the handling of a big criminal trial. And I believe, through 20 years as a court reporter, that I've had more experience than a lot of them.

Dorothy Sabastian Now Flourishes in Films

Dorothy Sebastian, who plays an important role in the latest John Gilbert-Greta Garbo co-starring vehicle, "A Woman of Affairs," at Loew's State, next week, deserted Broadway musical comedy to play in the movies. Miss Sebastian is a Southern girl. She was born at Birmingham, Alabama. She attended the local schools and was a student also at the University of Alabama. Amateur theatricals at college left their mark on her, so much so that she gave up her collegiate course and went to New York, with no knowledge of the difficulties which usually beset the aspirant to fame and fortune on the Broadway stage.

FINE ARTS—(Starting Wednesday) the Soviet comedy, "Three Comrades and One Invention," written and directed by Alexis Popoff.

Annette Kellerman Has Earned New Honors

Annette Kellerman, who comes in person to the Keith-Albee next week, has probably headlined at more international theaters than any living stage star.

Should she ever tire of her stage presentation she could aptly qualify as a worthy successor to Burton Holmes as a wide world traveler.

Miss Kellerman has recently completed her fifth world tour during which she appeared at every world-famous theater.

Farrell MacDonald Is Elevated to Stardom

Farrell MacDonald, starring in "Riley the Cop" at the Scollay Sq. Olympia, has been in pictures more than 10 years and has been elevated to stardom as a result of his excellent and consistent work under the Fox banner.

He made his debut in 1918 in motion pictures and became a member of the Paramount Stock Company in 1922. Before that he appeared as a "free lance" in several pictures produced by that organization.

Will Not Simulate Simian

De Wolf Hopper, that mellow jubilarian of "White Lilacs" at the Majestic, uses no aids to beauty. In the first place he needs no gland operation, and in the second he simply could not bear it to have some goat or monkey encounter him in the street and wail: "This is my own, my native gland!"

STAGE AND SCREEN

And Especially on Mondays!

Polly Walker, of "Billie" at the Colonial, was once with the circus. But she became an indoor actress because she had to wash all her own clothes (same as the others) in the dressing tent. "Even now," she says, "I always get a room at the hotel with a shower—tubs are things I prefer to forget."

REINHARDT'S 'MIRACLE' IS HELD UP

By LOUELLA PARSONS

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 19—Lillian Gish will not make "The Miracle Woman." The big boss has spoken, and by the big boss I mean Joseph Schenck, and the tone of his voice indicates that he does not think the story right for the fair Lillian. That must have been a blow to Max Reinhardt, who had been planning for weeks to produce this as his first movie.

But perhaps both he and Miss Gish are vacated, "or they are to do "Beautiful Women," by Ray Etienne, a German play. "Beautiful Women," is now being translated for Miss Gish.

Max Reinhardt, it is said, is still recovering from his surprise at Hollywood's casual reception of him. Abroad, where he lives and owns two castles, he is treated like a prince. Here there are too many celebrities to rate any particular favoritism from the film folk who are celebrities themselves.

• • •

THE surest way a girl, or boy, either, for that matter, has of knowing that his stuff has gone over with the public is to be given plenty of pictures. That may not be a brilliant remark but it is just an introduction to show that Sue Carol is one of those lucky gals who get a break about 13 months in the year.

She will finish "Girls Gone Wild" within two weeks and without so much as a day between pictures will be rushed into "The Exnited Flapper." That is not a movie title, either. It is the real title given a story by Will Irwin. James Tinling will direct Miss Carol for Fox, and that is all I know so far about the picture.

• • •

HAVING nothing to do but enjoy the scenery between New York and Los Angeles, Humphries Pearson took out the portable typewriter and wrote the story, "Shoestrings," of life in the theater.

"They tell me," said Pearson to himself, "they buy stories in Hollywood at the drop of a hat." He carried his little tale to Warners and in the twinkling of an eye it was purchased. Alan Crosland will direct it and Robert Lord is now writing the continuity.

Of course, it is to be a talkie. What picture emanates from the Warner studios these days without dialogue, music and what have you? Since the story is one of the theater, there will be dancing. Larry Cobsillow will see to it that they have the correct steps and Silver and Clark will furnish the lyrics.

THREE OF THE "PROFESSION"

MARY NOLAN shrinks from Lon Chaney and his weird adventures in "West of Zanzibar," next week at Loew's Orpheum.

HARRIET CALLOWAY, in a sleek top hat, does a deal of toetapping that stops the show for "Blackbirds," Tremont.

FRANKIE MOORE is one of the happy-go-easy "Bohemians" in the new burlesque at the Gayety Theater next week.

COPLEY PLAY IN GOTHAM

E. E. Clive, actor-manager-producer of the Copley Theater, has joined hands with Lee Shubert and together they will present "The Whispering Gallery," the latest of mystery thrillers, now playing at the Copley, in New York City, beginning Monday evening, February 11. Negotiations for this impending Broadway production were completed the other day when Mr. Clive, after a hurried trip to the metropolis, carried through the finishing detail in selecting his cast. The players will report to Mr. Clive during the coming week for rehearsals at the Copley where the production will be made preparatory to its Broadway engagement.

E. E. Clive

It is more than likely that Mr. Shubert will be here to witness the final rehearsals of the piece.

This is not the first time that Mr. Clive has offered New Yorkers an glimpse of his plays, after first having revealed them to local playgoers. "The Crackling Chair" "The Sport of Kings," "The Bellamy Trial" in early preparation for a New York production and "The Whispering Gallery" make up the list.

The Boston Urban League is sponsor for the concert, and Mrs. John T. Moore, treasurer of the league, is chairman of the committee of arrangements.

Keith Memorial Patrons Are Invited Backstage

Vaudeville patrons in Boston are invited by the management of the B. F. Keith Memorial to make a visit backstage and get a first-hand impression of life behind the scenes.

The new theater, of course, has elaborate backstage equipment, but up until now it has had no chance to admire it except those attached to the house.

Those who want to visit backstage may leave their names and addresses at the box office. They are then notified by the theater on what day the trip will be made. The patron, of course, is expected to attend the matinee performance on that day.

REBELS SEIZE 2 TOWNS IN GUATEMALA

Mexico City, Jan. 19 (AP)—The sudden flaring of a revolt in Guatemala is reported in advices from the border stating two towns are in the hands of rebels.

Dispatches from Suchiate on the Guatemalan border said Gen. Jorge Ubico, one of three generals who overthrew the Carlos Herrera government six years ago, was at the head of the insurgents.

The rebels captured the towns of Retalhuleu and Mazatanango, in the extreme northwest of the country. Communication with the capital at Guatemala City was cut off. All traffic over the border was stopped.

Maj. Robert F. Raymond, Jr., Boston war ace, who has been selected by National Comdr. Paul V. McNutt of the American Legion to serve on the organization's national aviation committee.

NAME HUB WAR ACE ON LEGION AIR BOARD

Maj. Robert F. Raymond, Jr., Boston's famous war ace, has been appointed to the national aviation committee of the American Legion, National Comdr. Paul V. McNutt of the Legion announced today. The commander is attending the Legion's banquet in Boston tonight.

In a tribute to Maj. Raymond Comdr. McNutt declared that he selected the Boston flier "because of his tremendous post-war aviation activity, because of his practical air knowledge, and because of his glorious war record."

"I take great pleasure," continued the commander's statement, "in appointing as New England's representative on the aviation committee one of America's outstanding aviation veterans, a flying buddy of Quentin Roosevelt, who was shot down at Chateau Thierry."

Maj. Raymond is chairman of the aviation committee of the Massachusetts Legion, a member of Boston's municipal air board, and an official of other aeronautical organizations throughout the country.

He won the Distinguished Service Cross and the Croix de Guerre for conspicuous gallantry in action during the World War. He is the son of Judge Raymond of the superior court. His home is in Newton.

Rep. Logan Praises Insurance Bill

While endorsing the Frank A. Goodwin-Boston Evening American bill to establish a State fund to supply compulsory automobile insurance at cost to Massachusetts motorists, Rep Joseph A. Logan of the Hyde Park-Mattapan-Roslindale district attacked the present law as unjust.

"Take my own case as an example of the unfairness of the present zoning system of determining what rate a motorist shall pay," said Representative Logan. "I live in Hyde Park, which, being a part of Boston, is in zone No. 1. I pay $47 for my compulsory automobile insurance. My next-door neighbor lives in Milton, just across the Boston line and because he is in Zone No. 2, pays only $33 or $14 less on a car of the same classification. Is that fair?

"My neighbor and I live 50 yards apart yet I pay $14 more for the same compulsory automobile insurance as he is getting. He has the same unlimited use of the highways as I.

"The inequality of the present law is so evident that a school boy in the grammar grades can see it. The insurance commissioner has taken his figures from the insurance companies in fixing these zones but I doubt if the real experience of the insurance companies will show more accidents, in comparison to the number of cars driven, in Zone No. 1 and Zone No. 2.

FAVORS CHANGE IN LAW

"I personally know of half a dozen residents of Hyde Park who formerly garaged their cars in Hyde Park, but who now garage them in Dedham or Milton in order to save the $14 which the rate in those towns makes possible. Incidentally that is working an injustice to the garage owner in Hyde Park, who has invested his money there but whose business is being forced away from him by the State.

"There is another phase of the inequality of the present law that I have noticed. I know a man who lives in Milton and pays $33 for his compulsory insurance but who operates his car in Boston most of the time. I also know a man who lives in Hyde Park, who, because he is in zone No. 1, pays $47 for his insurance but who operates his car almost wholly in Norfolk County, which is in zone No. 2, where the rate is only $33.

"The present compulsory insurance law smacks of class legislation more than any law that has been passed during the past half century in this State.

"It is my belief that every automobile owner, well-to-do, as well as the man who is barely able finance the purchase of a car, is against the present law and in favor of the legislation proposed by Mr. Goodwin and the Boston Evening American.

WOULD END FAKE CLAIMS

"It is the duty of the State to lessen the burden of its people—not increase that burden by legislation which favors the insurance interests. The insurance interests will do their utmost to stir the legislators in zones No. 2 and 3 against those in No. 1 in an attempt to defeat this legislation.

"I believe every representative and Senator who has the interests of the whole people of this state at heart will vote for the passage of this Goodwin-Boston Evening American measure so that the car owners of Massachusetts will get a square deal. They certainly are not getting it now as evidenced by the fact that they are paying $3,000,000 in commissions alone to private insurance company agents.

"State control and supervision, as proposed by the Goodwin-American bill, would eliminate many fake claims now paid every year by the insurance companies and which kick back on the insured car owners.

"Perjurers and fakirs could be more properly dealt with by an authorized branch of the government than in the private office of an insurance company.

"How vitally interested the people are in the Goodwin-Boston Evening American bill is disclosed by the fact that within three days after the bill was printed by the state the normal issue of 900 copies was exhausted as the result of calls made by individuals at the document room in the State House. This will necessitate a reprint as hundreds of persons who have asked for copies have been turned away since.

BIG SAVING

If the Goodwin-Boston Evening American bill becomes a law a state fund totaling $12,367,804 annually would be raised to pay all claims for personal injuries and deaths caused by automobile accidents on the highways of Massachusetts. This would be raised by charging a flat rate of $16 on every passenger car, regardless of power or where garaged; $25 on trucks and $50 on taxis, buses and rental cars.

Instead of the above mentioned sum, Massachusetts car owners will pay $20,000,000 for compulsory auto mobile insurance to private insurance companies this year based up on the registrations of last year. The difference of $7,500,000 represents the sum car owners would save every year if the Goodwin-Boston Evening American bill is passed. Of this sum $3,000,000 is in commissions to insurance agents.

Readers of this newspaper are invited to write, giving their opinion of the Goodwin-Boston Evening American bill, together with their experience and opinion of the present law.

IS your auto insurance costing you too much? Ought the law to compel you to furnish profits to private companies? Do the present zone rates seem fair to you?

Would you like the overhead cut from compulsory insurance?

Would you like to get your insurance and registration at one counter, at one time, and for one price?

If so, sign the accompanying petition:

Petition to Legislature to Pass Auto Insurance Bill

2ND HALF OF TRACK MEET AT NEWTON

By DICK McSWEENEY

A varied program faces the schoolboy sport fan today School hockey clashes both at the Arena and in the suburbs will have their quota of spectators.

It is a certainty that many fans will make their way to Newton, where the second half of the dual track meet between Newton and Brookline is being staged.

Seven basketball tilts are on the day's list with such features as the Holy Cross Freshmen-Worcester Academy, and B. U. Freshmen-Hebron Academy conflicts, standing out.

The suburban schools will also furnish some torrid tilts on the ice. Cambridge Latin is tripping hilltoppy to Exeter, Worcester Academy visits Andover; Cushing Academy plays at Deerfield Academy; Newton Country Day journeys to Concord where Middlesex is the foe; and Belmont Hill treks to Tabor Academy.

Browne and Nichols will be entertained at Milton Academy, while Pomfret will endeavor to wrest a victory from Bu hool, Choate school.

Getting back to track, we find that picking the winner of the dual meet between Newton and Brookline is going to be very difficult. Newton won the first half of the meet last Saturday and now leads by 10 points.

Ewing, Reynolds and the Newton relay team have already distinguished themselves.

Brookline has some great runners in Capt. Johnny Badaracco, Dana Smith and Ben Hootstein. Sam Fink is a better than average shot-putter, while Pete Racheotis can high jump with the best men in his class.

Dunne is hopping the hurdles in a pleasing manner and everyone else on the squad is performing in such a manner that Tom Hines must feel proud of his protegee.

As for basketball, the complete list of games is as follows: Hebron Academy at B. U. Fresh, Rogers High at Naumkeag, Ct., Holy Cross Fresh at Worcester Academy, Brewster at Yarmouth, Plymouth at Tabor Academy, Brown Fresh at St. George's School and Tilton at Cushing Academy.

There should be some good tussles hidden away in the above list.

Nurmi Will Try for Seven New Records

New York, Jan. 19—Paavo Nurmi, who has been here for some time, will renew his drive for new records at the 15th annual Brooklyn College track and field meet at the Thirteenth Regiment Armory, corner of Sumner and Jefferson aves., Brooklyn, tonight when he races in a 3000-yard run.

He will be timed at seven distances.

When the Alo Antelope ran to the United States four years ago he went on a record-smashing tour which made track history.

At that time Nurmi favored the shorter distances, but now he proposes to work up from 3000 yards or so to the marathon route. He has set his heart on winning the Olympic marathon championship at Los Angeles in 1932.

The record book lists only three standards of the seven for which Nurmi will be clocked tonight. Nurmi holds the 2000 meters record of 5:22.2-5; the mile and a quarter record of 5:35, and the mile and a half record of 6:42-5.

So Paavo is certain of setting four records should he be unable to surpass the three already credited to him.

He will be timed at 2000 meters, mile and a quarter, mile and three-eighths, mile and a half, 2500 meters, mile and five-eighths and 3000 meters. Veteran timers will be stationed at the seven points along the course to clock the Flying Finn.

The Brooklyn College Thousand, annually the feature event of the meet, will be overshadowed a bit by Nurmi's debut, but a high-class field insures an excellent race.

Phil Edwards of N. Y. A. C. and Stan Martin of the Boston A. A. are rated as equal favorites to win the event, but many will back the Rev. Harold C. Cuthill of the Boston A. A. Cuthill is said to have been clocked in 4:14-2-5 for the 1000 yards earlier in the week, and is in prime shape for the race. Other starters include James Kennedy of Georgetown, Ronald Brown of Central Y. M. C. A. and Murray Goldfish of the Millrose A. A.

In a sprint series at 100 yards, 100 meters and 75 yards, the chief competitors will be Bob McAllister, Karl Wildermuth, Jimmy Daley, Jimmy Puppas and Kenneth Wilson.

Boston College's one-mile relay team will open the Maroon and Gold 1929 track season against Holy Cross and Georgetown.

Coach Jack Ryder made a change in his final selections for the quartet, taking Joe McCabe along in place of Henry Keenan, who had been in the lead for the fourth berth since the Christmas holidays.

McCabe and Keenan had time trials on Wednesday, and the latter had the better of it by a fraction of a second. But McCabe came through on the following day, and outran Keenan's time.

EXPECTS GREAT FOUR

The showing of the B. C. one-milers will be watched with great interest by Boston College fans. Ryder has made it known that he expects his outfit to pull B. C. from the track slump it has been in for two years.

The team that runs for B. C. in New York tonight is composed of two sophomores and three juniors and has plenty of time in which to develop into a championship outfit. In 1930 Ryder should have a great relay in these four lads.

Finn and Sullivan will be running their fist varsity races, but Ryder says it won't make much difference in their performances. Both have had plenty of experience as schoolboys and freshmen. Finn is a Somerville High boy, while Sullivan prepared at Boston Latin School.

JUMBOS MEET SPRINGFIELD

Tufts will meet Springfield this evening at Springfield, and expects to start a new winning streak, the first having broken by a one-basket loss to Connecticut.

All the Tufts games this year have been settled by margins of three points or less, and the team has shown that it possesses more spirit than any other Tufts basketball team of recent years.

Tufts will start with the same lineup that showed so well against the Nutmeg Staters. Ellis and Dick Warren will team up at the forward positions, Butters will jump center, and Sicer and Apianni will play the back positions.

Warren has shown marked improvement this season, and next to the versatile "Fish," he has been the leading star of the Jumbo outfit. In the game with Connecticut he scored eleven of the Jumbo points, and his floor game was fine.

He has had very few fouls called on him, and shapes up as the team's leading hope for next year.

St. Joes Hold Bouts in Commercial Hall

St. Joseph's T. A. S., leading sponsor of amateur boxing in New England will stage another outstanding card tonight in Comercial Hall, Bowdoin sq.

Despite the fact that it staged the biggest show of the season in the Garden, Monday night, the entry list is one of the lengthiest of the season, Bill Cuddy states that between 30 and 35 bouts will be held in the Home of Action tonight.

The long program, once more will be featured, and enough entries have been received in that class to insure the fans with plenty of action.

DUNDEE TRAINS IN HUB FOR GO WITH MELLO

Joe Dundee, welterweight champion of the world, who comes to the Hub to meet Al Mello, Lowell Tiger, at the new Boston Garden, next Friday night, will be in the Hub to finish his training at Jim Toland's Gym next Tuesday afternoon.

Dundee plans to arrive in the Hub Monday night, and will step through three days of hard training here before local fans, before he mingles with the hard-hitting Lowell boy.

With followers of the boxing game manifesting more interest in this bout, which will practically decide the championship of the world, the early appearance of the title holder no doubt will result in a capacity throng turning out for his daily training sessions.

Mello expects to reach the peak of his form early next week, and he hopes to take it easy a couple of days before the fight. Not since Mello became a serious factor in the welterweight division has he prepared so seriously for a fight.

Robins Release Two Rookies

New York, Jan. 19—Two Brooklyn rookies felt the sharp swish of the official schmitar yesterday. Overton Tremper being sent to Macon and Max West to Newark. Both are believed to be in need of another year of season before they can adjust their talents to major league pitching requirements. West came to Brooklyn from Waco a year ago and was sent to Atlanta last year and later recalled. He hit .321 with Atlanta. Tremper spent the summer with Macon and hit .322, but failed to paralyze National League pitchers when recalled last fall.

Paul Richards, a youth who broke in with Brooklyn in the spring of 1926, but later drifted away, has been purchased by Macon from Milwaukee and will be taken to the Robins' camp for examination. Richards, an infielder, was sent to Crisfield, Md., two years ago, drafted by the Browns and then sent to Milwaukee. He is only 21 years old now and consequently about 10 years too young to be eligible for the Dodgers.

Stribling Puts Over Another K. O.

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 19 (INS)—Pa Stribling and his circus of fighters came, saw and took considerable "jack" out of the Old Dominion as young Stribling knocking out Art Malay in the third round of a fight scheduled to go 10 at the City Auditorium here tonight. The fight was anything but colorful, Malay being clearly out of class.

Canzoneri K. O.'s Armando Santiago

Chicago, Jan. 19 (AP)—Tony Canzoneri of New York, recently deposed as featherweight champion, today stood out as a principal threat to Tod Morgan's junior lightweight crown, following his knockout victory over Armando Santiago of Cuba.

Coming back after being pounded to the floor for a seven count in the first round, Canzoneri knocked out Santiago in the fifth round of a bout at the Coliseum last night.

POLO

By BILL McAULEY

A regimental derby will take place when the 101st Field Artillery and the 110th Cavalry clash tonight at the Commonwealth Armory in the Commonwealth Club's indoor pony polo league.

Devotees of the mallet game have been looking forward to this, the first meeting this season, of these great rival teams.

The other part of the bill will have the Harvard Varsity junior trio crossing mallets with the Freshmen trio and this till is creating almost as much interest as the feature event.

In the main event the 101st Field Artillery will have Colonel Dan Needham, Major Charles Furber and Lieut. Ted Pitman, a trio which has represented the outfit for the past eight seasons.

SMOOTH TRIO

Playing together for this length of time has made this team one of the smoothest and best working combinations in the game and the Cavalry trio will find them hard to overcome.

The Cavalry will be represented by Everett Jenkins, Sergt. Walter Vernon and Lieut. Roland Mangini, a trio of fast and daring riders who are likely to cause an upset at any time.

Due to the handicapping system in vogue the Cavalrymen will have an advantage of one goal when starting and this one point may be the deciding issue in the match.

FAST CRIMSON TILT

The Crimson battle has promise of being a fast and interesting affair with the junior varsity favored to emerge victorious over the freshmen.

Nicholas, Walker and Glynn of the Jay Vees have all had considerable experience and ability to shoot goals was well proven in their opening contest in which they registered 24 goals to establish a record.

The freshmen will be conceded a three goal start and it would be quite a boost for them if they could hold their opponents to a low score.

Jr. A. Chandler, Caspern Cook and A. G. Rowe will constitute the frosh lineup with a few substitutes ready if necessary.

Conn. Sharpe, Crimson coach, will have an opportunity to root for both teams at the same time.

Grimm-Lands Team Leads Bike Race

New York, Jan. 19 (INS)—The 129th hour and 21stst mile of the six-day bike race at Kingsbridge Armory found the Grimm-Lands team leading the field by one lap.

Three teams were tied for second place, the Walthour-Winter, Van Kemper-Hizzetto and Dempsey-Hill combinations. The Boogman brothers, third position a lap and one lap behind the pacemakers and one turn of the saucer behind the second players.

The standing:

Team	Miles	Laps	Points
Grimm and Lands	2181	8	144
Walthour and Winter	2181	7	200
Van Kempen and Rizzetto	2181	7	200

Borg Claims Another World's Swim Mark

Sydney, N. W. S., Jan. 19 (AP)—Arne Borg of Sweden today swam a half-mile in 19 minutes and 27 seconds, which was claimed to be a world's record. The distance was over an eight-lap course.

YALE IS FAVORED OVER CORNELL

New York, Jan. 19 (AP)—Four Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball League teams are in action tonight, but nothing any of them can do can oust the red and blue clad cagemen of Pennsylvania from the lead.

Tonight's program finds Yale traveling to Ithaca to meet Cornell, while a tamed Tiger of Princeton clashes with a none too ferocious Indian of Dartmouth at Hanover, N. H.

Pennsylvania, idle all week so far as league warfare is concerned, made sure of holding onto first place during the first two weeks of play, turning in victories in each of its two starts.

Chief interest centers on the clash of Yale's bulldogs and Cornell, Yale, after suffering a crushing defeat by Penn in its initial start, surprised with triumphs over Princeton and Dartmouth.

The Elis will be strong favorites to down a Cornell team battered by Princeton on its only league battle and generally cuffed around by outside opponents.

The Dartmouth-Princeton fray looks like a toss-up, Dartmouth was nosed out by both Penn and Yale, but hopes to gain a victory in its third start against the Tigers.

Michael Scanlon of Baseball Fame Dead

Washington, Jan. 19 (AP)—Michael O. Scanlon, pioneer sport figure, whose association with baseball began in 1868, is dead here at the age of 81. In 1875, while in charge of the Washington Nationals, he bought Connie Mack, now manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, and three other players from the Hartford Club for $5000.

The man who has been called "the Daddy of Washington baseball," fell on the street recently and the injury brought on an illness that ended in death yesterday.

McKirdy Forced to Put Off Arena Bouts

Ill luck is still tramping on the heels of the Arena A. A. Willie Oster of New London, who was to have boxed Arthur Flynn, and Johnny Gagnon, who was matched with Tommy Daley, reported with heavy colds, and rather than secure last-minute substitutes Promoter Bob McKirdy has postponed the above until early next month.

Meanwhile blowers are being installed in the Arena to remove the smoke, and when the Arena A. A. runs again it will be a thoroughly modern plant.

GREAT FIELD IN K. C. DASH SATURDAY

By JOE CASHMAN

The greatest college and club sprinters in the East will compete in the 60-yard dash at the William C. Prout Memorial games at the Boston Garden, next Saturday evening.

Heading the list of entries received to date are those of Jimmy Quinn and Jimmy Daley, who, running for Holy Cross, were the outstanding dash men of the 1928 campaign and are ready and anxious to add to their laurels during the coming season.

Local fans have yet to fully recover from the thrills that the "James Boys" furnished last season and are expected to pack the Garden to see them match strides.

There was little, if anything, to choose between the pair a year ago. Each won more than his share of titles and each turned in several record performances.

Neither was given a chance in the B. A. A. games last year, but Daley won and Quinn finished second with such stars as Karl Wildermuth of Georgetown, Frank Hussey, Ernie Morrill and Al Miller trailing.

From then on, it was either Quinn or Daley who won the dashes at all the big meets, both indoor and out.

Daley won the intercollegiate indoor title, while Quinn won the intercollegiate outdoor crown and a trip to Amsterdam as a member of the victorious United States 400-meters Olympic relay team.

It was believed by some and it may have been true, that they did not worry very much about being beaten by one another since they were members of the same college team and dear old Alma Mater gained the same amount of prestige regardless of which finished in front.

If they ever did hold that view, they don't any longer, for Quinn has since been graduated from Holy Cross and is now running for the New York A. C., so the future races between the pair are bound to be as thrilling, if not more so, than those of the past.

Wildermuth, Miller, Hussey, Morrell and the other dash stars whom Daley and Quinn whipped repeatedly in 1928 are all anxious to meet the latter pair and many of them will undoubtedly enter the Prout games to have the opportunity to do so.

Incidentally, the fastest performer in the dash will automatically become the proud owner of the Prout cup, as it will be the first indoor sprint of over 40 yards ever held in the Hub.

Hintz Leads Husky Frat Court Scorers

Elmer Hintz is the leading scorer of the Northeastern fraternity basketball series at the end of the second round, with 22 points, and his brother, Lester, is only five points behind him. These brothers, from New Haven, Ct., wear the colors of Alpha Phi Kappa.

A teammate, Winslow Libby, and Purton Phillips, of Sigma Phi Alpha, are tied for runners-up with 20 points apiece. Berkeley Whitman, Alpha Kappa Sigma, is fourth, with 19, and Russell Latimer, of Sigma Phi Alpha, fifth, with 18.

Lester Hintz, Curtis Scott of Alpha Kappa Sigma, and Albert Thompson of Nu Epsilon Zeta are deadlocked with 17 each. Stuart Palmer of Sigma Omega Psi and Jacob Abbott of Kappa Zeta Phi break into the first 10 with 15 and 14, respectively.

MR. BOSTON By Jack Conway

"ONE must have spirit if he is to succeed in athletics."

Phil Buccola was talking to Mr. Boston. Phil is manager of Jack Gagnon. He is new to the fight game, but is blessed with native intelligence and natural business ability. He is also able to inspire others, which is the big thing in his makeup.

"Iaiways considered Jack Gagnon a good fighter," resumed Buccola, "but somehow he wasn't getting anywhere. I then took him under my management. I found Jack could punch better than most of the big fellows and that he was a fair boxer. I decided he needed more spirit in his attack to get to the front ranks of the heavyweight division. I impressed upon him that the best defense is a strong offense.

"I put Gagnon in with Con O'Kelly and I thought he won although the official decision was against him."

"I saw the Gagnon-O'Kelly tussle," interrupted Mr. Boston, "and I thought Gagnon won seven out of the ten rounds."

"Next I dropped Gagnon in the New York Garden with Johnny Grosso, the big fellow whom Billy Gibson has been grooming for more than two years.

"It was a tough fight for four rounds, but after that Gagnon's aggressiveness and punching power sent him out front. Jack had Grosso hanging on at the finish.

"I have just signed Gagnon to tackle Otto Von Porat in a ten-round tussle at the New York Garden on February 1. The bout is the semifinal to the Johnny Risko-Max Schmelling jam. Von Porat is a dangerous puncher, but Gagnon will lick him. Now that Jack has spirit he will be the greatest of the heavyweight threats."

JACK SHARKEY was stretched out on the rubbing table at Jim Toland's Gym when Mr. Boston dropped in on him.

"How much are you weighing, Jack?" asked Mr. Boston.

"Just 197½ pounds," replied the Boston contender. "When I started working for the Christner bout, I was 186 pounds. I have come down to weight gradually. I took off a pound a day at first. Then a half-pound a day."

"What's your best fighting weight?" queried Jim McDonald.

"About 189 pounds," replied Sharkey. "I was 188 pounds the night I fought Harry Wills. I can get down lower in weight when the weather is cold or intensely hot as it is in the tropics. I spent 18 months in the tropics when in the Navy. It was often necessary to sleep out on deck, it was so warm. Then suddenly a storm would come up and the drops of rain would be as large as small pebbles.

"When the humidity is high, as is often the case in Boston and New York, it is more difficult for me to get down to low weight. I seem to puff up under such conditions.

"The DeKuh fight helped to put me into condition, but I'll be in much better shape when I step into action with Christner on next Friday night in New York."

"NEW YORK," said Mr. Boston, "is very much steamed up over the Sharkey-Christner bout. With a $10 top, the show is expected to draw $80,000.

"Sharkey, other than Dempsey, has been the best box office attraction for the Madison Square Garden corporation. Within two years, he has helped to draw close to $2,000,000.

"DICK HOYT, Cyclone Bill Carey and the other powers at the Garden believe that the Sharkey-Stribling bout at Miami will top $300,000. They already have received orders for more than $100,000 worth of tickets from Northern cities. I understand that Tack Hardwick and Sheldon H. Fairbanks will head a party of Boston fans to Miami. Horse racing, dog racing and surf bathing are added attractions at the Miami resort.

"Last year the ha was down on horse racing at Miami. This kept thousands of persons away from the Florida resort. The business interests at Miami were able to have racing restored with oral betting.

"I GET a greater kick out of a dog race than I do watching a horse race. Eddie Hurley, my dog race operator, tells me one can lose money just as fast on the real dogs as when playing the other kind of dogs.

"Eddie should remember that the hounds are at least trying to win. Of course, they are sometimes handicapped by having their paws sandpapered or are fed up with a juicy steak just before a race, but even under these conditions they sometimes cross up the wise boys and win."

Passing the Puck

By BILL GRIMES

Although cub hockey is far from a howling success at present, there are good reasons for predicting that the amateur sport is going to come back.

The University Club and the Boston Athletic Association will soon start a five-game series, which should develop considerable interest in amateur competition.

The University Club has been practicing and playing regularly and is therefore in fine condition, but the opposite is true of the wearers of the Unicorn.

Jack Hutchinson's charges have taken on a new lease of life since they arranged a two game series with Harvard, and within a couple of weeks the B. A. A. squad will round into shape.

There will be three first class amateur teams in Boston next season, the University Club, B. A. A. and the Millionaires, the latter representing the Madison Square Garden Club of the Boston Garden.

Huntington R. Tack Hardwick, and George C. Funk, are the sponsors for the Millionaires. Hardwick and Funk are great boosters of amateur sport and both fondly believe that club hockey can be brought back to the popularity it enjoyed before it was given the works.

There will also be two amateur clubs in New York. Not the type of teams which have been playing around Gotham for the past few years, but first-class aggregations. Hardwick and Funk have been in many conferences with William F. Carey of Madison Square Garden, and the New Yorker is sold on the idea.

With the amateur game in the hands of such men as Tack Hardwick, George Funk and William F. Carey, it cannot miss fire. It will offer an opportunity for the development of local talent, which has been practically at a standstill for years.

Eric Pettinger, who has been loaned to the Maple Leafs by the Bruins, played a fine game against Les Canadiens in Toronto. Pettinger did not relish the idea of leaving the Bruins, due to the well-known bonus, but his brother and sister live in Toronto, and he will feel more at home.

Evidently, the New York Americans are going through the sticks with a fine toothed comb, as there have no less than five scouts out in quest of material.

The American hockey public does not look favorably on the loaning of players by National Hockey League clubs. Such a practice is an open admittance that the box office receipts predominate, and if this should prove the case the interest would fade rapidly.

Audrey Shore, brother of the famous Eddie, visited here for a fortnight last season. He is not quite as big as Eddie, but he is a very well set up young man. During his stay here, he did not mention anything about hoping to make the big league, only admitting that he played a little hockey.

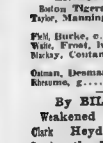
By BILL GRIMES

Weakened by the loss of Clark Heyd and Johnny Loucks, the Tigers will battle the Philadelphia Arrows tonight at the Boston Arena.

Although the Tigers are in fifth place in the race for the Canadian-American League championship, they are only two and one-half games behind the pacemaking Springfield Indians and the Rhode Island Reds of Providence, which teams are doubleheaded with a total of 26 points to the Tigers's 18.



Bill Grimes

As the Tigers have been short handed practically all season, there is no danger of them folding up because Heyd and Loucks are out of the lineup. There is no gamer team in professional hockey than the Tigers, and the absence of their two teammates will be an incentive to bear down harder. In fact, the Tigers are more dangerous when playing shorthanded than they are when they have their entire team.

TIGERS SHIFTED

As Heyd and Loucks are both left wingers, Manager Eddie Powers was forced to revamp his team for tonight's battle. He shifted Frank Waite out to the wing from center ice and promoted Bill Field to face off with the first line, with Bob Taylor on the right wing.

Field is a fine combination play er and he will feed Waite and Tay lor effectively.

Frank Waite will be very much at home on the wing, for he covered that position for the Springfield Indians for a couple of years before he joined the Tigers.

Waite has few peers as a stick handler and in spite of his lack of poundage, he is an exceptionally hard worker, who takes his bumps, which are many, without a complaint

BURKE AT CENTER

Eddie Burke will work, with Harley Frost and Benny Manning, at center on the second line. Frost has seen but little service this season, and he is particularly anxious to stage a comeback.

The Tigers' outer defensive assignments will be divided between Capt. Eddie Oatman, Reg Mackay, Pono Constant and Lindsay Desmarais. Since the two Frenchmen got a chance to display their wares during the small that Capt. Oatman and Reg Mackay were on the hospital list, they have been playing fine hockey and have become great favorites with the fans.

Herb Rheaume will be in the nets. The Arrows are in fine shape. Manager Norman Shay has had his charges right up at the top of the standing all season and is anxious to get back on even terms with Springfield and Providence.

ROBERTS IN GOAL

The Arrows will start Maurie Roberts, the clever goalie from Somerville High School, in the net, with Frank Peters and Nobby Clark on the outer defense.

Lloyd Andrews will be at centre with Archie Briden and Chuck Whyte on the wings. Manager Shay has Spunk Sparrow, Charlie Cahill and Harry Meeking, a trio of ex Cubans, for forward line replacements, while Babe Donnelly will do relief work for Peters and Clark.

On the last meeting of the Tigers and the Arrows at the Arena, Herbie Rheaume and Maurie Roberts were not beaten and the game ended in a scoreless tie, after one of the fastest exhibitions of hockey of the Can-Am. season.

MISS SEARS RETAINS HER TITLE

Miss Eleonora Sears, Harvard Club, retained her Massachusetts Women's State Squash Racquets championship today by defeating Miss Louise Waterman, also of the Harvard Club, in their home courts on Commonwealth ave.

The national and State champion won the match in three straight sets, 21—11, 15—7, 15—8. Miss Waterman got away to a good lear in the first set and the champion settled down to come out on top with a score of 15—11.

Once Miss Sears settled down to her usual form she stepped right out front, giving Miss Waterman little chance to make up lost ground.

Miss Sears is seeded No. 1 in the national championship tournament, which will start on the same court Monday.

Among the large list of entries in the national tournament, Boston has eight seeded players. There are also eight seeded players invading the Hub.

McLeod and Sarpolis Grapple Thursday

Farmer George McLeod, brilliant heavyweight wrestler from California, and Dr. Karl Sarpolis, clever Cleveland grappler, will battle next week's big all-star wrestling show to be staged under the direction of Paul Bowser at the Grand Opera House.

McLeod hammered George Walker to defeat in an impressive fashion at the Grand on Thursday night and, as a result of his sensational showing, he was immediately signed to wrestle the Apollo of the mat in the feature of next Thursday's show.

The Farmer, whose flying head scissors is one of the most spectacular holds in the game, is anxious to gain a return match with Gus Sonnenberg for the heavyweight title.

McLeod is far from convinced that he is not Sonnenberg's master, and he intends to meet and, if possible, dispose of every opponent selected by Paul Bowser in an effort to force his way into a return meeting with Dynamite Gus.

COMMERCE SIX BEATS B. C. H. AT ARENA

Boston College High suffered another setback in the Boston High School Hockey League matches at the Arena today, when it lost to the Commerce sextet, 3 to 0. It was one of the best games of the season at the Arena. Gallagher, right forward for Commerce, jumped through the B. C. H. defense to score both goals for his team.

Jamaica Plain was held to a scoreless tie by Dorchester and Hyde Park and Latin School played a 2—2 tie game.

Dunlop, Dorchester High goalie, saved the day for his team when his shinguard intercepted a well-meant shot for the goal. Joe Lynch, playing center for Jamaica Plain, broke through and started for the net with the puck. When within a few feet of the net he lifted the disc and the nclashed with Dunlop and both skaters went to the ice

The disc slipped into the upper part of Dunlop's shinguard and Referee Ted Lynch ruled that the puck failed to go into the net since it was on Dunlop's person

Latin school came back in the second period of its game with Hyde Park to tie up the score at two-all Latin was covering Dandinski all through the game and was successful for the most part, although the clever Hyde Park wing managed to snare one goal

Bucky Carson played a superb game for Latin. Dandinski and Walsh showed well for Hyde Park in the forward line.

ENGLISH WINS

English had no difficulty in trouncing Charlestown by a 6 0 score. Crimlisk was the high scorer for English with three tallies Horn played two into the net to aid the Blue and Blue cause. While Marshall sent the disc into the net for the final tallier.

Murray was the star for Mechanics in the Mechanic Arts-East Boston game. The playing of Foley and Abats for East Boston stood out.

South Boston pinned a 1-0 defeat on Trade through the fine playing of McKenna, who was responsible for the only score. Bannister, Roubian and Wallace worked hard for Trade.

Brighton high, playing a practice game with Mission Hill high, came through with a 1-0 victory. Shea scored the tally for Brighton. Conlinan and Casey played cleverly for the Mission Hill club.

Tex Had $65,000 on Leaving Alaska

By JACK LAWRENCE

(Copyright, 1929, by the New York American, Inc., and Universal Service, Inc.)

TEX RICKARD sold out his interest in the Northern Saloon at Nome to George Murphy for $50,000. This conveys some idea of what a gold mine the place must have been.

In addition to the $50,000, Tex had $15,000 of his own, which he had saved. That was his capital when he headed south, intending to spend a few days in San Francisco before returning to Texas, where he planned to buy a ranch.

In recalling those days long afterward, Rickard said to me:

"I guess I was a sap not to go through with my Texas plans because the people who finally bought the Texas land that I intended to buy became multi-millionaires through the discovery of oil and gas on the property.

"But, somehow or other, I still had that hankering to see what Jim Corbett looked like, even though he had lost the heavyweight title to Bob Fitzsimmons while I was in Alaska. I guess it was because Jim was the man who had beaten John L. Sullivan.

"That was what lured me to Frisco. And going there changed the whole course of my life. Many years passed before I saw the plains of Texas again."

BEFORE closing the Alaskan chapter of Rickards life and passing on to his promotion of the Dan-Nelson fight at Goldfield there are a few things that should be mentioned. One is that it was in Nome in 1903 that Tex had his first attack of appendicitis, the disease that eventually was to cause his death.

Dr. A. E. Southworth, now a practicing physician in Seattle, was called in. His version of that incident is interesting:

"My office was over Frank Scow's saloon, a few doors from Rickard's place. One day a man came in and told me that Tex was sick in bed and had a terrible pain in his right side.

"I found that it was his appendix that was causing the trouble. There were no facilities in Nome at that time for performing the operation that I knew was necessary. Also there was plenty of ice and by using this I managed to relieve him.

"I can remember very well advising Rickard to start immediately for some city where he could find a modern hospital and have his appendix removed. He said he would, but when the pain subsided and he got on his feet he said he guess he didn't think the operation would be necessary.

"Of course it was only a question of time before it would return, but he didn't heed my warning. If he had taken my advice he would probably be alive today."

RICKARD established friendships in Nome that were to last throughout his life. One of his bartenders at the original northern saloon is now a wealthy business man in Seattle.

One of his partners in that enterprise, George Murphy, accumulated a fortune and also settled in Seattle, where he was Democratic county chairman at the time of his death.

The Rev. Dr. Raymond Robbins, now prominent in the Interchurch movement in Chicago, was a young preacher in Nome at the time Tex Rickard was running the Northern Saloon there. He and Tex became fast friends and one Sunday Robbins made Rickard the subject of his sermon.

He told his congregation of rough miners to hold Tex Rickard, the honest gambler, as their ideal and to mold their lives after his.

That was considered good stuff at that time and in that country where honest men were recognized regardless of what their personal habits might be. It probably wouldn't be so hot today.

PAUL H. WATT, now a prominent hotel man in Seattle, recalls that Rickard was elected to the Nome city council. Speaking of those days Mr. Watt says: "Tex was a good city official for those times, when there was no reform legislation to worry about.

"He was progressive in his political ideas. He spent money readily and lost it with the same fixed smile that he won it. Many a miner gone broke found a new stake awaiting him at the Northern where Tex spun the wheel.

"It was a common occurrence to see him hand out a $20 gold piece to a miner down on his luck. Nobody knew how many miners went back into the hills with Rickard's money financing them."

Tex D. Orton, now a conservative lawyer in Seattle, is another who can remember Rickard in those Nome days. At that time, Mr. Orton had his law offices over the Fi Dardo saloon, which was directly next door to the Northern. He was then known as "the Inland Out Kid." Recalling those distant days he says:

"The Northern earned the reputation of being the most orderly house in the territory. Because of this, most of the play was around Rickard's tables. Tex was always there to see that there was no funny business and the big sports came to drop in his place."

WHEN Tex passed the Alaskan frontier for the last time and headed for San Francisco, he said to himself:

"I've got $65,000 in cash and now I'm going to settle down and enjoy myself for a while."

Little did he suspect that he was just entering a phase of his life that was to be even more tumultuous than the Alaskan one had been.

In Frisco, he began knocking about the hotel lobbies and saloons, probably trying to catch a glimpse of his pet hero, James J. Corbett. As one of the latter's close friends, a friend he had known in Dawson City. At the time Tex was planning to pack up his trunk in a day or so and start back to Texas. That chance meeting changed the entire course of his life

Conference Action Bars A.A.U. Athletes

New York, Jan. 19 (AP)—The Western conference may have "broken" relations with the Amateur Athletic union, but Dan Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the A. A. U., can't see it that way.

There was nothing to "break," he says.

Maj. John L. Griffiths, commissioner of the Western conference, announced yesterday that his organization "tired of the A. A. U. attempts to dominate our affairs," had decided that it "will conduct its athletic meets independently."Henceforth," he said, "we will conduct meets with clubs and teams that we choose and will not pay the regular $10 tribute to obtain the heretofore necessary sanction."

But Ferris, terming the Western conference announcement as simply another "expression of disapproval of A. A. U. control," pointed out that the latter never attempts to interfere where competition between colleges is concerned, out recognized the meeting as an amateur one, without question.

"The only time when a noncollegiate athlete is involved that the A. A. U. says, in his, and, "It is only when the A. A. U. athlete competes that the A. A. U. is forced to watch over them," he declared, "even in collegiate track meets the A. A. U. only takes control of the event or events in which A. A. U. athletes are running.

"We do the same here in the East with Yale, Harvard, Columbia, Pennsylvania and all Eastern colleges, and there never a a murmur of complaint from them."

Ferris thought that if the Western conference sticks to its determination to go through with its meets without A. A. U. sanction, its members will find it difficult to induce star non-collegiate athletes to compete. Disqualification from the A. A. U. would be the penalty.

LOMSKI BEATS BRADDOCK

New York, Jan. 19 (AP)—James J. Braddock, hard-punching lightheavyweight from Jersey City, had found in the aggressiveness of Leo Lomski, the Aberdeen, Wash., woodsman, the roughest spot along his road to the top of the division.

Lomski forced the fighting all the way in their ten-round battle at Madison Square Garden last night to halt Braddock's rise by the decision route.

Using through constant aggressiveness that Lomski gained the decision. The Jersey lad could not land his terrific right punch effectively on the stocky Westerner. Lomski kept coming to close quarters, evading the dangerous right and pounding Braddock's body and taking left hooks.

Near the end Braddock cut loose with everything he had saved, but was not able to fight on through seven terms with Lomski throughout two rounds of hard slugging.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Society Out in Force to Attend Wedding of Richard C. Storey to Mabel Bayard Thayer in Emmanuel Church Today

NUPTIAL VOWS EXCHANGED THIS AFTERNOON FOUND A THAYER MAIDEN AND A Storey man in holy wedlock, and all Boston's creme de la creme, the backbone of the town's aristocracy, was in Emmanuel Church at the hour of four waiting in hushed solemnity for a bride whose beauty was transcendent in her wedding finery. Miss Mabel Bayard Thayer, third daughter of Mrs. Bayard Thayer of Beacon st. and Lancaster, wedded with Richard C. Storey, Jr., before an altar radiant with scores of tall candles. A dozen antique candle stands, hand wrought in some past age by a master of the craft in Italy, stood about the lancet and never a suggestion of greenery veiled the ecclesiastical richness of Emmanuel's exquisitely beautiful altar

A FINE SENSE OF DISCRIMINATION AND A MASTER DECORATOR'S TOUCH PLACED madonna lilies in two tall urns and lilies massed on the altar, to enhance the shimmering [illegible] satin of bridal robes. The bride's gown was sent over from Paris, a model from a far-famed couturier who deftly arranged gleaming folds in wedding gracefulness. The sleeves were [illegible] in period mode, the gown itself was long, and in the vogue of today swung out [illegible] and [illegible]. Rare and fragile family laces, pieces that have been Thayer possessions these many years, formed the veil.

SO VERY IMPORTANT A BRIDE WITH SUCH SCORES OF FRIENDS MIGHT HAVE had the most imposing of entourages, girls born to the purple of aristocratic lineage and [illegible] with as is Miss Thayer. The bride's choice was for a sole attendant, however, a friend of intimate [illegible] from nursery days—Miss Joan Sears, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Henry Sears of Beacon st. and the North Shore. Miss Sears wore a frock of chiffon, in a green blue that suggests the wave crests of tropic seas and was topped by a felt chapeau in blending tones.

PROBABLY NO BRIDE IN BOSTON EVER HAD A MORE INTERESTING WEDDING bouquet than the marvelous orchids Miss Thayer carries. They are priceless white beauties, with the highest perfection of the exotic tropical growth and each tenderly nurtured to that [illegible] in Albert Burrage's conservatories. They looked like enormous butterflies on their [illegible] stems and were a [illegible] gift from Mr Burrage to the bride, carrying much more than the usual sentimental value accorded bride bouquets which [illegible] florist's shop.

AND PROBABLY NO BRIDE AT her wedding reception was surrounded with lovelier blossoms [illegible] with sentiment. Mrs. Thayer's enormous mansion that is as grandly on Beacon st., its [illegible] garden side, will be filled with [illegible] roses, mimosa and acacia. The roses are a tribute from Thomas E. Rand of Nahant to the bride on her wedding day. Literally hundreds of the freshly fragrant blooms massed in gorgeous color about the Thayer home as wedding guests extend their felicitations. The graceful feathery yellow acacia and the mimosa come from Mrs. Thayer's country place in Lancaster, where Hawthorne Hill is famous for its greenhouses and gardens.

THE DOOR OF MISS ROSE DEXTER'S residence at 400 Beacon st. seems ever to be ajar in welcome those of a philanthropical turn. Musicales, benefits and well doings follow each other in quick succession. Wednesday another one is added to her good score when she opens her home for a sale of Albanian [illegible] and [illegible]. The Albanian Red Cross and the International Institute are joint beneficiaries and bright bits of Albanian needlework and weaving will make a rare showing.

OF COURSE THE JUNIOR LEAGUE sends its faithful quota to assist. The Misses Florence and Minna Lindsay, Miss Eleanor Clark and Miss Julia Paine, full-fledged and probationary members, will help dispose of rugs, linens, laces, silks, and pass around the Turkish paste that is the particular tidbit of the day. Mrs. Arthur Graham Carey, Miss Penelope Noyes, Miss Mary E. Park and Mrs. George M. Pritt are interested and will be in evidence Wednesday to see that all goes smoothly and briskly, with coins flowing in for the double benefit.

ROMANCE IS IN THE AIR! A [illegible] strong current of [illegible] seem [illegible] reaches from Washington to Boston, as a young man [illegible] a part of the Diplomatic Drama [illegible] of Mrs. Edward [illegible] Mason [illegible] Captain. The bride is Miss Virginia Mason, daughter of Mrs. [illegible] Mason and [illegible] Brigadier-General Mason [illegible] Montgomery Blair, Jr., is the bridegroom-elect and [illegible] whose maternal parent, formerly Miss Edith Draper, is claimed [illegible] rect connection with the fine old New England family. Mrs. Montgomery Blair is the aunt of the charming cosmopolite, Princess Margaret Draper Boncompagni.

NOTABLE LINEAGE ACCOUNTS for a Montgomery Blair as the Lincoln object and save young Dr. Blair as a grandparent the late Gen. William Draper, one time Ambassador to the Court of Italy. The Blair country estate at Silver Springs, a few miles from the capital, is one of the splendid Maryland estates that give renown to the region. The wedding rites will be celebrated in the Federal City, in the ancient Church of St. John on Lafayette sq., and certain Italians in the family [illegible] will probably be travel[illegible] hour for the event.

THE STAR OF THE YOUNGER Set rose brightly to shine in the social heavens last evening.

The Juniors who danced and supped at intervals through the late season were out in force at the Hotel Copley Plaza, the masculines in formal spikeseal regalia and the feminines like so many bright tropical birds all aflutter. Mrs. Everett Morss, Jr., was a flaming, for color, in her brilliant moire with shoulder points to her slippers. Miss Polly Thayer threw emphasis on her costume's touches of coral—with coral pendants and necklet, and velvet shoes interestingly designed in coral and gold.

A TRAIL OF GREEN MOIRE dangled about Miss Polly Beale's green satin slippers, and swirled about her off-white taffeta in the mazes of the dance. Miss Beale was one of the girls having a supper group. That slender sprite of a matron, Mrs. Elizabeth Lyman Rice, arrived well after the midnight hour, but not at all Cinderella like. Her gown was a fresh of trailing tulle and net, of a quite dark blue and very becoming. Miss Isabella Grandin's intricately-designed rose velvet slippers matched her velvet jacket, worn above a richly-beaded frock something of Rue de la Paix stamp unmistakably

Betty Alden

THE LOVELY POST-DEBUTANTE, Miss Rose Salton-stall Movius, was a supper hostess of bewitching good looks. Her cocktail jacket was gaily inspired, and matched glitter for glitter with the enormous buckles on her satin shoes. Miss Mary Louise Butterfield added to the general scintillation with stunning gold earrings, to make effective note with a gown of seafoam green velvet. Miss Betty Soule in a peche velvet with gold lace hem, and Miss Eleanor Gibson in a similar frock were just a bit bewildering, until one recalled that these two confections were bridesmaid frocks, and recognized a third on pretty golden haired Miss Mary Hammond

PETITE MISS SYLVIA WELD in white, and her petite mother, Mrs. Rudolph Weld, were of the early comers, bringing guests. Miss Dorothy Lawrence, one of the Junior Committee enrolled to see that these affairs are as smart and jolly as they are exclusive, was wearing a swirling green chiffon with sash effect in long ends. Mrs. Phineas Shaw Sprague, also one of the 12 directors, was in cherry red velvet with a touch of gold. Miss Betty Bartlett, another of the chosen, wore a figured chiffon, long, of course, and, of course, uneven about its hem.

Art Exhibit at Fogg Museum

The first known exhibition of Italian 17th and 18th century paintings and drawings to be held in the United States opened today at the Fogg Museum at Harvard University, and is to be on view until mid-February.

The show is held primarily in connection with a course of lectures at the museum by Prof. Arthur McComb covering the period in question. The organizers have confined themselves to obtaining loans from institutions and private individuals in Boston and vicinity

Ex-Governor Fuller's famous art painting of "Pizzeta" is without doubt the best of the collections according to the Harvard Art Department. Eight drawings owned by John Nicholas Brown are also on exhibit.

Women to Dedicate $140,000 Salon

BOSTON clubdom today took one look at next week's calendar, and straightway called up its hairdresser—and then ordered new hat and frock

For distinguished guests are coming and important gatherings of the mighty are scheduled in club circles.

And such preparations!

What with telephones buzzing, messenger boys and taxis rushing, daily confabs with chairmen, printers, florists, musicians and hotel managements, I predict that much club business will be done with much social eclat.

In the first place, the Sixth District Conference of the State Federation will dedicate the handsome new $140,000 salon at the Statler with a luncheon next Friday. Mrs. Frank G. Allen, wife of the Governor, city representatives high officers of the general, state and city federations and 200 club delegates will grace the occasion

PRIZE A FEATURE

This room, the "Salle Moderne," is the last word in modern art, a symphony in platinum frieses against black backgrounds, with several shades of green in contrasting panels. It was designed by Lorimer Brooks, Cleveland director of the Statler system.

In the center of a parquet floor, with a deep mezzanine border rising two feet above it and enclosed with an old iron railing overlaid with French gray lacquer in modernistic pattern. Huge square columns carry out the general design, but the charm of the place lies in the lovely wall frieze in outline pattern of leaves, birds' heads and wings, the whole lighted by gorgeous chandeliers.

Mrs. Clarence Pearm of Wilmington, Del., chairman of legislation of the General Federation, will deliver the principal address, on "The Law of Common Things," when the conference adjourns to the Georgian room for business sessions. The conference begins there at 9:45 a. m.

BRING GREETINGS

Greetings will be brought by Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, first vice-president of the General Federation; Mrs. Arthur D. Potter, General Federation director; Mrs. F. G. Smith, General Federation membership chairman; Mrs. Asel A. Packard, State Federation president, Mrs. William J. McDonald, sixth district director, and Mrs. J. Herbert Raymond, president of the Hostess Club, the Eastern Star Women's Club.

The musical program under the direction of Mrs. Amy Y. Burns will be worth a long journey to hear, for she has assembled a noteworthy group for her program

• • •

Another distinguished visitor, Miss Dorothy Thompson, wife of Sinclair Lewis, will be feted and listened to eagerly when she talks at the Foreign Affairs School, on "European Readiness" at the Hotel Commander in Cambridge next Thursday, at 2:30 p. m. under the auspices of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters. Miss Thompson, brilliant young authoress journalist, speaks with authority on things Russian, at Steinert Hall, on Wednesday evening, under the auspices of the Woman's City Club.

Thrilling Mystery Story of Love and Danger

What Has Happened So Far

On his first day in the Air Mail Service, a heavy snow storm causes Carmichael, the station superintendent, to cancel arrangements for Dick Trent's first flight alone across the Rocky Mountains. Old Rand, owner of the service and his daughter, enter. Called to Rand's house, Dick hears praise for his work from the Old Man and finds he is in love with the daughter. Next day at the field Dick tells Lawson, another aviator, of his sky-writing invention. He sees Mary go up in her plane. She loses a landing wheel. Dick saves her life by flying straight for her in the air to prevent a fatal crash. Mary's machine is wrecked.

Now Go on With the Story

CHAPTER VI

THE two day rest at the airport at the opposite end of Dick's run seemed long to him indeed.

More than once he regretted his hasty departure without seeing Mary again, or her father. But he had a healthy disgust for at the thought of their emotional gratitude. He was glad he had saved Mary's life, that was reward enough.

But now he wanted to see her, and the time hung heavy. During the interval he grew better acquainted with Tommy Rand. That spoiled and likable youth seemed to have learned nothing from his previous lesson. He calmly admitted that Dave's gambling house saw him every evening, and he expected to make a big clean-up by a system of his own. There were other and ugly rumors about Tommy, rumors of sordid love affairs that were believable enough. Women and Tommy found each other irresistible.

It was on the early morning run—when Dick took off for his home field. By his calculations he ought to reach his destination some time in the neighborhood of dawn, and as it was the weather, he had no difficulties.

Landing and repairing, he strolled ... to find Lawson ... and ready ... The ... The ... Lawson and Dick were pretty good friends. I think I might as well tell you I'm quitting the game."

"Quitting the game? But why?" Dick asked.

Lawson grinned. "I am getting married," he said.

"But—but—I see here—why should you quit the game?"

"She wants me to. I've tried to ... but I don't ... I ... Anyway, I'm quitting."

"So you're going to be married, Lawson?" Dick asked. "Well, I'm glad to hear it. I wish you luck."

CONCLUSION OF "FRECKLES"

and with small loans at low interest."

When Freckles was recuperating McLean spent hours driving in his car with O'More and Barlow; they talked to farmers made suggestions laid their plans wisely and efficiently. As Lord O'More's interest grew and he began thinking of other folk for the first time in his life, his disposition improved—he became more kind and thoughtful. Lady O'More blossomed like a rose; one heard her laugh; the whole atmosphere of the house was changed.

Autumn had crept into the heart of the Limberlost.

After McLean had been with Freckles for a week he had written to the Angel. It was the typical letter of a business man . . . It put hope and new life into the Angel.

"Dear Girl: I am with Freckles at the O'More home in Ireland. The days have been . . . but he is recuperating nicely. He is fretting with himself because I get back to Canada this evening to see about his job for him, and all the time I feel sure he is worse because of it. . . .

"Meantime, my dear, be patient with Jewell. Just remember in understanding Freckles, we will realize the passing hour. You are of course, quite sure you are right. Don't push and fret. Just wait and see. You're sure and mother will the Limberlost. Love to all.

"JAMES R. McLEAN."

This letter the Angel kept with her constantly, and whenever the blue fog became too thick, she read it. She went regularly to Freckles' room in the Limberlost and cared for it.

It was dusk on an evening in mid-October. The Angel took her banjo and went to the Limberlost. She was sitting in Freckles' room playing and singing their little Irish melody, when from somewhere—she could not tell—a voice from somewhere joined her. Freckles' voice joined her in the chorus. Stupefied, she looked sure enough — there he was—taller, broader and older, but the same old Freckles, with the laughing eyes and bright, rebellious hair.

Freckles came toward her and held out his arms—both arms—and without a word, she rushed into them. Then an age-old scene followed, but one ever new to lovers who have been parted for a long time. When they recovered from their state of breathless ecstasy Freckles explained everything, satisfactorily, of course, the while he put a gorgeous ruby ring on her finger, red, just like the heart of the Angel, and said:

"I've a surprise for you dear heart, Mr. McLean is married to a lovely woman he met on the boat. They are at your home now, waiting for us. When we arrive, and you were not there, I knew you were with him."

"Why didn't you let us know you were coming?"

"Because I couldn't bear the thought of seeing you first in a crowd station. This is perfect—and as I had to have it. . . . How did you find me?"

"Your Mother knew. . . . She sent you out, she let me go, and here I am."

"I'm unspeakably glad I. Mc Lean . . . I've been in the business while it was in dread of the honeymoon, but I'm going to Chicago for three lessons every week, and then . . . "—and then—

"And then . . . "

And I are to go abroad on our honeymoon, and we shall see . . . and I am to study music some more—" and they passed into oblivion again.

"Angel, you've never said a word about my new hand. I have no one wood and one hard rubber, joined different ways, and gloves of all colors," and he told her all about Paul, who had left them and gone to his own Mother.

"It's great if you're pleased, dear, but personally, your hand was never the slightest concern—I never even thought about it."

So they strolled along the little path leading out of the shades and shadows of the Limberlost, to the open road of life stretching before them, lighted by the golden glow of an enormous harvest moon.

The End.

BUSINESS MEN WHO ARE GOOD ON THE RADIO

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor

Dr. Julius Klein, former Harvard instructor, now director of the U. S. Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, is heard regularly over

Dr. Julius Klein. Gen. Atterbury

Station WJZ. Perhaps you have heard him on your new "receiving-set." If so, you have probably remarked that his voice is one of the best for radio orations—and he is a busy speaker on business and finance.

• • •

Gen. W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, first "united" director elected on the Boston Stock Exchange, also made a good impression over the radio. He was emerging the new eight-mile bore through the mountains east of Seattle, known as the Cascade Tunnel. Ralph Budd, president of the Great Northern, also "came through" well.

• • •

A simple change sometimes causes a lot of delay, it would seem. Read this Washington dispatch, self-explanatory of our point: "The statement on brokers' loans figures was not issued until 4 p. m., due to a change in form of issuance. The usual time is 3 p. m. The Federal Reserve Board has dropped the last six figures in its statement and uses only eighteen."

• • •

There has already been some criticism of the action of a government official in "taking sides" in the Rockefeller-Stewart battle, even though he has the right opinion. Note that "Howard E. Sutherland, allen property custodian, stated he had assisted voting power of the 12,000 to 13,000 shares of Standard Oil of Indiana, which is at his disposal, to John D. Rockefeller, Jr. The stock is the property of Germans seized during the war."

We find Statler Street sentiment turning toward the Rockefeller cause.

• • •

Cyril Carmichael, recently elected a vice-president of Stone, Webster & Blodget, Inc., is sailing shortly on the Majestic for Europe, where he will represent his firm.

• • •

J. A. Sisto and R. Stroppa-Quaglia of the International banking firm of J. A. Sisto & Co. are sailing on the Majestic on a visit to the firm's offices in London, Paris, Rome and Milan. They will also visit Rome.

• • •

New Hampshire Committee on Judiciary has before it the following bill, introduced by Representatives Matson of Concord: "An Act Relating to Stale Employes Tipping. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court Assembled: 1.—It shall be unlawful for any state employe to charge in his expense account for any item commonly known as tips and if any such item is charged it shall not be allowed. 2.—This act shall take effect upon its passage."

• • •

We do not know what the New Hampshire General Court is going to do about this matter, but quoted by Dr. Matson, but mention is merely to show another line of demarcation between politics, the "business of government," and private business. Government is getting darker indeed when it can fight the tipping evil, against which private business has not yet been cured. Of course most of the residents of this state prefer to have tipping abolished and higher salaries substituted. We believe it was recently brought out that girls in a fixed sum per week for the privilege of waiting on tables in a New York establishment where tips were generously distributed. And tips are said to become larger as one enters the denser zones of population.

NEWS OF Trends of the Day BOSTON Leaders' Views MARKETS

BOSTON TRADE IS REVIEWED BY DUN'S

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Trade Review in this week's issue will say regarding trade conditions in Boston—Fundamental conditions continue to be sound, and the basic industries are operating on a fairly high level, but during the current week trade has been somewhat dull and small dealers are complaining.

The volume of business in the wool market has been moderate with sales of sizable quantity confined to a few lines. Receipts of wool in Boston to date this year have been 3,480,000 lbs. as compared with 9,053,700 lbs. for the first two weeks of last year.

BUSINESS ON BOOKS

Stocks of medium wools are large, and of fine wools larger than they were a year ago. Boston dealers are proceeding very conservatively in contracting the Western clip, though the outlook in the local market is good, with the mills fairly well occupied with orders and an improvement expected in the goods market. Prices as a rule, are firm.

Spinners of woolen and worsted yarns have considerable business on their books and, as a rule, are disposed to hold closely to present quotations. New orders are not coming in very freely.

Current sales of cotton textiles are light and prices are steady. Gray goods are moving in moderate quantities. Stocks of finished goods increased during December, and, as a consequence, it is expected that the mills will curtail production. Cotton spinners also are quite well supplied with orders, but they, too, are finding new business slow to develop to any volume. Rayon manufacturers report an active call from the mills making cotton mixtures.

SHOE ORDERS GOOD

Hides are lower. Local dealers, however, are carrying light stocks and the tanners are in the market for very little of the raw material. The various kinds of leathers are slightly more active. Some price concessions are looked for on account of the drop in hides.

Shoe buyers were in Boston in large numbers at the style exhibition last week, and manufacturers received a good volume of orders—sufficient, in many cases, to keep their factories running from 30 to 90 days. An early Easter this year is emphasizing prompt deliveries. Weather conditions this week have favored the sale of winter footwear.

New building contracts awarded in New England during December amounted to $28,322,900, which was 9 per cent less than the figure for December, 1927. Contracts awarded this week amounted to $4,507,500, as compared with $6,848,700 for the corresponding week of 1928. There is a moderate demand for building lumber, and prices continue unchanged. The heavier building materials are moving in fair quantities.

Chemicals are active on contract prices. There is a moderate movement of tanning materials and dyestuffs, with little change in quotations. The demand for paints is fair. Hardwoods are selling well and prices are firm.

Imports in the Massachusetts customs district for 1928 were valued at $276,639,000, as compared with $284,499,000 for 1927. Exports were $48,600,000 in 1928 and $42,181,000 in 1927.

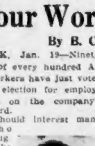
How to Win Men's Loyalty; Armour Workers' Response

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, Jan. 19—Ninety-six out of every hundred Armour & Co. workers have just voted at a primary election for employe representatives on the company's confidence board.

That fact should interest many executives who are still struggling with the problem of motivating employe loyalty and mutually satisfactory relationships.



B. C. Forbes

Says the employes' publication:

"This, in the opinion of all, is an indication that employee representation is popular and effective.

"The Mechanical Division made a remarkable record, 99 per cent of its eligible voters cast their ballots. This is one of the best records ever made in a plant division. The Beef Division, with 97 per cent, was second and the Production Division with 95 per cent was third."

Ralph D. McManus, of Armour & Co., sending these facts, presents the following extremely illuminating information concerning beneficial results upon labor turnover since the starting of vacations, with pay, for all classes of workers:

"I read with considerable interest your recent article relative to the International Harvester Company's vacation plan, and thought you might be interested in our experiment along that line.

"Back in 1922, Armour & Co. decided to give vacations, with pay, to plant workers who were on an hourly wage basis and who up to that time had not been eligible for vacations.

"Obviously, the rules governing such vacations have to be different from those governing employes among the salaried workers. These latter have a much lower rate of turnover and their work is of such nature that it can be split up among their co-workers, so that the vacation pay is not really an added expense to the business. But in the plant, where the men work on an hourly basis and where the work cannot be held over from day to day, the problem is different.

"We have worked it out, however, on what we regard as an equitable basis, and Armour & Co. employes who have been with us five years are granted a week's vacation with pay. If they have been with us for 15 years, they are eligible for two weeks' vacation with pay.

"That vacations are a factor in lessening labor turnovers is evidenced by the increasing number of our employes who have become eligible each succeeding year for these vacations. In 1923 we gave vacations, with pay, to 1,800 plant employes. In 1924 the number was 4090; in 1925, 4447; in 1926, 4614; in 1927, 5240, and in 1928, 6,483."

* * *

T. S. Dukes, general manager of the Star Sprinkler Corporation, Philadelphia, writes:

"Your various items concerning the treatment of employes is of never-failing interest. In our little business, which is only about five and a half years old, we have attempted to have a consistent five-and-a-half-day week in the shop and we have the five day week in both the shop and office from June 1 until after Labor Day, no matter how busy we are.

"We have thought for some years that the five-day week was a certainty. However, in order to forestall argument concerning wages, we allow the men to make enough in five days so that they are not penalized for the day off.

"Aside from this, we give the employees a present of money at Christmas and also pay for Christmas Day. In our experience we have been unable to find where this has harmed our production, and we are also happy to say that we have found very few cases of lack of appreciation among the men.

"The trouble with most of us who have to do with the running of business is that in our dealings with our employes we forget our own humble beginning and struggles. Generally, the old fashioned day has passed in which it was said that sentiment had no part in business. To our mind it has a very great part in business, and we know that fair treatment has paid us the greatest of all dividends, which is loyalty."

INVESTMENTS IN UTILITY LINES PAY

A new high price of 95⅞ for Electric Investors common on the New York Curb, contrasting with the 1928 low of 46⅜, directs attention to this successful investment company, which is under the Electric Bond & Share aegis.

Electric Investors reports for the six months ended Dec. 31, 1928, income from all sources of $4,531,340 and expenses, taxes and interest $187,205, leaving a balance of $4,343,-835 for the stock.

There will presently be outstanding 200,000 shares of 6 per cent preferred stock, the annual dividend requirement on which will be $1,200,000. Thus the 1928 earnings available for the approximately 1,000,000 common shares were equal to $3.14 a share.

It should be borne in mind, however, that all securities purchased are carried at cost; therefore, the stated earnings do not include the enhancement in the market value over the book values of securities owned. Stock dividends are included as income at the market price on the day received.

On December 31 last Electric Investors owned securities of 91 companies in no one of which did it have an interest exceeding 5 per cent of the total stock outstanding, except in one instance, where it owned less than 10 per cent. The market value on December 31 of securities owned was more than $91,000,000. More than 57 per cent of this market value was represented by securities of 37 public utility companies.

The 10 largest public utility investments (market values) on December 31, last, were in stock of the following companies: American Gas & Electric, National Power & Light, American Power & Light, Electric Power & Light, Public Service Corporation of N. J., Commonwealth Power, Columbia Gas & Electric, North American Co., American Water Works & Electric and Consolidated Gas of N. Y. Other utilities in which Electric Investors holds stock are International Telephone, American & Foreign Power, American Superpower, Shawinigan Water & Power, United Gas Improvement, New England Telephone reserve for taxes.

HOW BROKERS SEE MARKET

Hayden, Stone & Co.—So far as one can generalize about such a broad affair as the market has become it moves back and forth in rather an aimless manner. Perhaps this is the best thing that could happen under the circumstances. All discussions on this matter come back to the credit situation, to which the market is now more sensitive than it has been in the past. At a time of year when money should be easy, it is distinctly firm. This naturally causes some uneasiness as to what may happen when the spring commercial demands materialize. The decrease of $275,000,000 in rediscounts, reported last week, is a move in the right direction, though probably influenced by year-end settlements. If this item can be reduced still further, without liquidation, so much the better.

Cotton is Mixed

New York, Jan. 19—Cotton was irregular today at a decline of 6 points to an advance of 3. January sold at 20.13, March 20.58, May 20.86, July 19.94, October 19.88 and December 19.46.

AMERICAN Chain Co. omitted quarterly dividend of 75 cents on common, due at this time.

DOLLAR TRADE VOLUME FOR WEEK IS UP

The volume of business during the week ended Jan. 12, as reflected by check payments, was greater than in the corresponding period of 1928, according to the weekly statement of the Department of Commerce. Activity in steel plants was likewise greater than in the same week of last year. Detroit factory employment, indicating operations in the automobile industry, showed substantial expansion as compared with both the preceding week and the same week of 1928.

The output of crude petroleum, covering the latest reported week, showed gains over both the preceding week and the same period of last year. Bituminous coal output was also larger than in either prior period.

The general index of wholesale prices was fractionally higher than in the previous week, showing a gain also over the same period of last year. Copper prices averaged higher than in either period, while iron and steel prices, showing a fractional decline from the preceding week, were higher than a year ago. Cotton prices averaged higher than in either period.

Loans and discounts of federal reserve member banks showed a material contraction from the preceding week but were larger than a year ago. Interest rates on both time and call funds average lower than in the previous week but were substantially higher than a year ago.

Prices for stocks showed only slight change from the preceding week but were higher than last year. Bond prices were also unchanged from the preceding week, but were below the level of a year ago.

Receipts of cattle at primary markets were smaller than a year ago, while hog receipts showed practically no change. Receipts of wheat were also lower than a year ago. Business failures were more numerous than in either the previous week or the same week of 1928.

Since December 1, 1928 have received new contracts totaling $616,000, of which a large part is for Air Corps business, consisting of repeat orders on airplanes already in service.

"Included in this business is an experimental order for a new model of advanced type for the Air Corps, embodying the latest design and expected to give outstanding performance. Our new plant has been started to handle expeditiously the increased business we expect to receive in addition to the above."

UTILITIES Service Co. has acquired Northern Ohio Telephone Co., with 30,000 subscribers, and Southern Ohio Telephone Co., with 20,000 subscribers, for shares of stock, it is announced by Kidder, Peabody & Co.

NO DOWNWARD STOCKS TREND EXPECTED

The irregularity that has characterized stock prices since the upward rush during the closing days of 1928 and the opening days of 1929 can be traced to some concern on the part of the general public over the money situation and the common belief that another technical reaction is in order. This is the view the New York economist, Charles P. Wright, president of the Business Economic Digest, in his weekly financial letter.

"Authoritative comment on the stock market, however, does not reveal the same uncertainty," Mr. Wright adds, "although most economists strongly urge caution and discrimination in making new purchases. There is some feeling in authoritative circles that another temporary reaction may take place, but no basis is seen as yet for anticipating any major downward swing in prices."

The total volume of credit that has been absorbed by the stock market and that has caused some feeling of apprehension reveals a need for caution in the minds of financial observers, Mr. Wright finds. It is not believed, however, he says, that the total volume of credit outstanding in the country is excessive when considered in reation to present reserves.

"These same authorities," Mr. Wright adds, "point out that there is at present no actual shortage of credit or limitation of the amount available for business despite the firmness of money. Purchase will give the New England company ownership of 52 per cent of the stock, as it already owns 49.5 per cent.

JOHN PRATT WHITMAN, CHURCH EDITOR

A BOY OF BOYS GREW IN WISDOM

SYNOPSIS: The boy had been caught with his sheep in a storm on the evening of the Sabbath. As he came over the hills a lamb strayed into a quarry unnoticed. Later the boy was forced to go back and search. In the storm there came to him a revelation, as of God speaking to him out of the clouds.

CHAPTER 4.

Once again the light was seen at the window of his home, but this time it was trebly bright. His mother had placed a candle on the sill to welcome her son out of the darkness.

He felt that he had gone out a boy into the night and had returned a man.

As they passed the sheepfold the lamb Tobiah gave a bleat of satisfaction and struggled to be released.

A WRECKED HOME.

"No, not this time. You go with me where it is warm for you will shiver." In spite of the candle light it was quite dark and the night wind was blowing. The boy's toes came in contact with something soft and there followed a note of pain. The lad stooped down and discovered a small fledgling sparrow that had evidently been blown from its nest. There arose another series of peeps and as he felt about the ground he had come in contact with a nest with several more birds still clinging to its twigs. A small broken branch explained what had happened and the call of a mother bird was evidence of a family tragedy. Tobiah was again placed on the ground and the shepherd gathered up the nest and the small featherless birdlings with extreme tenderness. Somehow these birds in the storm made him think of his own plight but a short time previous when he stood alone on the hill. And with this feeling his hands enclosed the nest and small sparrows with a mighty surge of love for creatures in need and helplessness. He remembered an old shed for by the corner of the house. This he brought and into it put the wrecked home and from it fled. He then turned the jar on its side in such a way that the parent birds could get in if they should try. "Oh the mother I could find you a better place," he said.

HE KNOCKS AT THE DOOR.

He then picked up Tobiah and approached the door of the house. It looked black and forbidding, for it had been closed tightly against the tempest. Within, the boy knew there were warmth and light and love. What a contrast to the black cold night outside! One knock would change all, and yet he hesitated. He listened a moment and there came to him the rich, deep tones of his father reading:

"Hear, O Israel, for the Lord our God is one God."

"And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul and with all thy might."

The shepherd boy had heard that many, many times, but never before had it come to him with such meaning. A thrill went like a glow through his boyish frame.

A WARM WELCOME

He hoped no one would be too curious as to his adventure in the storm. An idea popped into his head and he gave a hearty a knock as he could with his doubled fist. There came a hush inside and then he heard his brother James say "I'll go." As a crack of the door was opened the shepherd boy thrust Tobiah into the room and remained himself outside in the dark. The sheep blinked his pale blue eyes foolishly and gave a questioning bleat. There then followed a tumult from brothers and sisters. "It's Tobiah. He's found, he's all right."

Before he had time to think what next the returned shepherd found himself close in his mother's arms. "We are so glad you have come, my son, and that you succeeded in finding Tobiah. How very long you were. Come, warm your hands by the brazier, and change your damp robes for this dry one."

As the chance was made his father laid the roll from which he had been reading down for a moment and looked at his son. With pride mixed with a touch of trouble.

"I am indeed glad that you found the lamb my son, but what can we do to remind you to start home earlier?" Had you come when you should there would have been no breaking of the Sabbath law.

HE HAD BROKEN THE LAW.

The shepherd boy had nothing to say; what could he say? How could he explain that because of the lost lamb there had come to him on the mountainside the most tremendous experience any boy could have? He knew he had disappointed the entire family, and especially his brothers and sisters who were planning a good time before the Sabbath arrived. He knew he had labored, and labored hard on the Sabbath, and yet he could not in his heart feel sorry, for he was saving lives.

Disappointment, however, could not last long in a home where thankfulness for a safe return overbalanced other considerations. The father took up the roll again and continued reading from the Prophets. The boy sat on the floor just a little out of the family circle. As in thought, his mind wandered from the reading and he watched patterns cast by the glowing brazier on the smoke-darkened ceiling. In his father's reading the boy's ear caught words that arrested attention. The passage was from the story of Jeremiah, the prophet, and God was speaking from the almond bush to the youth from Anathoth:

"Arise, gird up thy loins, be not dismayed. Go and speak to Jerusalem, saying, Amend your ways and your doings and ye shall call me 'My Father.'"

For a moment the boy's heart beat doubly quick, for it seemed to him that God had again sent a direct message. He, the shepherd boy, had often longed to go to the Holy City.

HE HAD REACHED MANHOOD.

On this great day he had become a man and subject to the law. On the morrow there would be a ceremony in the little synagogue, and he would be called to give a prayer of thanksgiving, and also speak to the congregation.

When the reading had finished and brothers and sisters had settled themselves on their mats for the night about the walls, the boy came to his father and mother who were still sitting by the brazier.

"Father," he asked earnestly, "may I not go with you at Passover time to Jerusalem? I want to see the temple and the city. I am a man now you know."

The father smiled with affection and satisfaction, and the mother grasped the hand of this, her strange child, who could not remember to come home to his own party.

"Yes, you are a man and subject to the law. From now on you will help me at the carpenter bench, and your brothers James and Judah will tend our sheep." The father stopped an impressive moment, and then placed his hand gently on the boy's raven locks. "If all goes well, you shall go to the Passover with us."

Soon the room was dark and all was quiet, for the boy had thoughts too big for sleep.

SPECIAL GRACE FOR FAITHFUL BY POPE

His Holiness, the Pope, has published a bull, "Auspicantibus Nobis," dated January 6, instituting a Holy Year, extra ordinem, on the occasion of his sacerdotal jubilee.

His Holiness grants a plenary jubilee indulgence to all the faithful in Rome who fulfill the following acts of piety: First, to visit twice on the same or different days the three basilicas, St. John Lateran, St. Peter's and St. Mary Major, praying for the Pope's intentions; second to fast on two days which are not included in the days prescribed by the precepts of the Church; third, to go to confession and communion distinct from the annual confession and Easter communion; fourth, to give alms, according to the ability of the donor, for the advancement of some pious work, among which the Pope suggests works for the propagation and preservation of the faith.—The Pilot.

Abe Lincoln Rescued Bird by Roadside

The Rev. Wilbur G. Chaffee, of the Grace Methodist Church, Magazine st., Cambridge, will precede the morning sermon tomorrow with a sermon to children. He will take for his topic, an incident in the life of President Abraham Lincoln when he horseback riding with a number of friends. Mr. Lincoln saw by the side of the road a small bird that had fallen from its nest. He stopped, dismounted, and after considerable time managed to replace the fledgling in its nest. His attempts, patience among the honorable gentlemen who were anxious to ride on, ever follow the spirit and meaning of this past."

UNITARIANS ARE ADOPTING THE MISSION PLAN

Unitarians are following some of the orthodox evangelical methods in their coming mission to be held this week in the Arlington Street Church, Boston.

The Rev. Horace Westwood, D.D., who will be mission preacher, has not entirely left behind him his Wesleyan training as a boy in England when he followed his Methodist preacher father about from city to city. He talks of salvation by grace and then proceeds to interpret what he means by grace. Dr. Westwood believes in mixing a certain amount of true emotion with intelligent thinking.

WILL CO-OPERATE WITH BOSTON FEDERATION.

Because he believes in forms of evangelism and because Unitarianism and the Laymen's League are in sympathy with a city-wide plan for visitation to be carried out by the Greater Boston Federation of Churches under Evangelist Kernahan, one of the objects of the Unitarian mission is said that the Arlington Street Church is to cooperate with other churches in making the movement a real revival not only for all orthodox churches, but for Boston Unitarianism.

Dr. Westwood believes there is no easy road to salvation.

TURNED FROM OLD FAITH TO UNITARIANISM

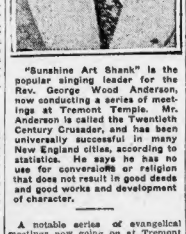
Dr. Westwood has in the past been a preacher to Canadian lumber camps. He has been through exciting and dangerous adventures in towns where liquor was easily obtained. He took his life in his hands more than once. He broke from his early faith at the Merriweather University in Chicago, and rather than to submit to a heresy trial he withdrew from Methodism and came into the Unitarian fold.

He says he thinks salvation comes through the release of the good that is in all people. "No one is fundamentally wicked," he states. That "every man is a child of God" is another of his beliefs; when one becomes aware of that he achieves salvation. Religion of the past was a religion of escape," he explained. "Religion of today is a religion of realization."

A second object he has for his mission next week is to reach all people possible who are today outside the pale of any religion. "There must be a new awareness of God," he says.

His first meeting will be held tomorrow evening and the conference continues until the following Sunday. The non-church going public is especially invited.

Song Leader



"Sunshine Art Shank" is the popular singing leader for the Rev. George Wood Anderson, now conducting a series of meetings at Tremont Temple. Mr. Anderson is called the Twentieth Century Crusader, and has been universally successful in many New England cities, according to statistics. He says he has no use for conversions or religion that does not result in good deeds and good works and development of character.

A notable series of evangelical meetings now going on at Tremont Temple represent a new type of revival, according to those who have observed the methods of the Rev. George Wood Anderson. Twice a day throughout January these meetings are held, and conversions called for.

The Rev. Anderson has a theory that any form of modern mission or revival should be normal and not materially different from the life of the home churches. Should his Tremont Temple services become far more emotional than those to which the churches are accustomed, he says converts would grow dissatisfied when the first interest had gone.

Dr. Anderson emphasizes in a most emphatic manner the necessity for works to accompany conversion. "Religion lacks vitality when it does not express itself in some form of good works" he explained.

Your Pastor's Hobby—What Is It?

The Rev. Wilbur G. Chaffee of Grace M. E. Church, Cambridge, carried a pedometer that registered 1000 miles in steps between September 1 and May 30, ranging between four and five miles daily. He rose at 5 a. m. for a number of years, but now sets his alarm for 6. He recommends walking to all who have sedentary occupations.

The best hobby to ride is walking, say a number of Boston clergymen who travel on foot from two to ten miles a day. At least six pastors who live within sight of the State House dome gain inspiration for their sermons while making circles around Franklin Park or skirting the Charles river basin.

These men have hard muscles, large lung capacity, and infrequent colds. They recommend walking for every minister in the city, and one walking divine calls for a legislative act to force preachers onto the open road, with all wheels left behind.

The Rev. Wilbur G. Chaffee, of Grace Methodist Church, Cambridge, approves of five miles every morning beginning at five or six o'clock. For a number of years this is what he did every days in the week, over the West Boston bridge, around the Public Garden and down Commonwealth ave., to the Cottage Farm bridge, and then back to Magazine st. He said he weighed 210 lbs. in those days.

By dieting and walking he now carries but 165 pounds. A touch of blood pressure has compelled a reduction from five miles to two or three, and his changed the rising hour from 5 to 6 a. m., but the habit and hobby continue. He often wears his pedometer, which clicks like a clock with every step he takes, while his friends he has walked five miles it is not guessing. His best sermons, he says, are composed while on the tramp. "Have a hobby that gives health and ideas," is the slogan of these peripatetic preachers.

The Rev. J. W. S. Lowry makes his hobby work for his parish. He walks everywhere and will not use an automobile. "The highways should be primarily and first for pedestrians," said this minister. "In the old country," he explained, "the king's highway gave the right to pedestrians, and that is the way it should be. He thinks that the public should at least make the roads so that walkers would not be in perpetual danger. Dr. Lowry, who is pastor of the South Congregational Church, Highland ave., Cambridge, has all his parish sitting on foot, and often walks as much as 12 and 15 miles a day. "I have walked 2½ miles at a stretch when I had a train to catch at Winnipeg," he said.

The Rev. Edwin Lunn Miller of St. Mark's English Lutheran church, Winthrop st., Roxbury, says he thinks there should be more attracted to compel ministers to walk daily. "Trains and 'Walkers' are enemas," he maintained. The Rev. Miller thinks nothing of a tramp over the Blue Hills to Milton or Brookton. Four times he has hiked to Providence and back, taking nine hours each way. He has to stroll of a Saturday down to Plymouth. Two or 12 miles about his parish, which includes 33 farms and cities is a pleasant little tramp. The Rev. Miller walks when in doubt as to what he needs the exercise, and most of his sermons are planned, as he says "on his feet." Another of his pleasure in walking comes through his care in choosing his shoes, and he never wears the same pair of shoes two days in succession. He has been in his parish 25 years and is still going strong. Very frequently he circles Franklin park in his walks, "Walking means walk, better sermons, clearer thinking."

The Rev. Fred Alban Weil of the Church of the Presidents, Unitarian, of Quincy, Mass., is a great believer in walking and has a walking club. The Rev. Wilson Aull, D. D. of the Somerville Presbyterian Church considers walking the best salvation for those who do it regularly.

Watch for your pastor's hobby next Saturday.

Church Federation to Observe Pact

The Massachusetts Federation of Churches has issued a call for all churches in the commonwealth to observe in some way the signing of the Kellogg peace pact. The announcement reads in part:

"We request all the churches of the State of Massachusetts to observe next Sunday, January 20, the ratification of the Paris peace pact by the Senate on January 15, signed by the President on the 17th.

"We regard this pact as a highly significant step toward enduring world peace, raising a new bulwark against the war menace by accepting the obligation to use only agencies and procedures of peace for solving all international controversies. Let the church bells ring; songs be sung, and prayers of thanksgiving offered, with petitions for divine help that our nation may

PERSHING'S KIN BAITS BRITISH

New York, Jan. 19 (AP)—The New York World says today that George Pasvi inc. 23-year-old son-in-law of Gen. John J. Pershing, led a demonstration before the British consulate, which was broken up by police last Thursday.

Young Pasvinc, in a field organizer for the All-American Anti-Imperialistic League. The demonstration was in protest against alleged acts at Shark, India, of F. W. Johnston, American labor agitator, carried placards reading "Down with British Imperialism."

Pershing said he became a Communist in 1927 after release from a two-year sentence in a military prison at San Francisco. He had enlisted in the Army in 1924 and with five companions was arrested in Honolulu for grand larceny, house breaking and attempting to burn a disputable house.

RADIO RIB TICKLERS

WBZA—Here's a nice, clean joke sent in by B. F. Studley of Charlestown:

Coed—"Oh, look. The players are covered with mud. How will they ever get it off?"

Another—"What do you think the scrub team is for?"

WBZA—Lillian Serkess got a laugh out of this one:

"Remember, Clarence. There's a ghost in that closet where I keep the cake."

"Sonny you never blame the ghost when there's any cake missing. It's always me."

Send in to the Boston Evening American Radio Department the best jokes and amusing incidents which you hear over the radio. For every contribution printed, a prize of one dollar will be sent to the writer.
